2 Men Crawl Out of Wrecked Oklahoma Mine

DEATH TOTAL IN COLLIERY BLAST IS 91

Rescue Experts Assert No Possibility Exists That More Workers Are Alive

14 BODIES TAKEN OUT

Crowds at Mouth of Shaft Surprised When Toilers Believed Dead Emerge

(By United Press)

WILBURTON, Okla., Jan. 14.—The Dugan-McConnell mine No. 21 today reluctantly gave back two lives, two more of the 101 miners originally entombed in it.

After veteran miners and rescue experts had declared there was no possibility of any of the entrapped miners being alive, Cecil McKinney, white, and Burl Hollis, negro, came out.

Weak and trembling from 23 hours' imprisonment in the mine, McKinney crawled out before an amazed crowd of nearly 2000 spectators, and two hours later Hollis was dragged out and restored to consciousness by a pulmoner.

10 Miners Are Alive

This makes 10 of the 101 miners to come out alive after their rendezvous with death.

The main of the mine yielded 14 dead bodies by noon. The rescue of two men today added zest to the rescuers and they renewed their work in hope of finding more alive.

Four companions in McKinney's tunnel were killed by the blast, but by some miracle McKinney was not even knocked unconscious. He crawled blindly through the damp-filled and death-strewn passages for 23 hours.

Just before he came out, he crawled over the dead body of his father.

Ed Boyle, state mine inspector, is on the ground to conduct a state probe of the disaster.

Some people here believed that the accident was caused by one of the fire bosses who knew of a gas pocket in the mine.

No Insurance On Workers

Unlike many of the big mining companies, the Dugan-McConnell people did not carry insurance on the lives of their employees, according to James McConnell, one of the owners of the mine.

The firm is a corporation, but it is owned entirely by the Dugan and McConnell families.

"Never again!"

This was the first statement of McKinney, after he had escaped from the mine tomb.

"What day is it?" asked McKinney, as he was lifted from the hoist cave and assisted to an automobile to be taken home.

"I didn't know the mine; I never was in a mine until six weeks ago."

"When the explosion came, I was in the chamber of the No. 16 level. (It was at the end of this chamber that 31 bodies were found by rescuers.)"

"After I kinda came to my senses, although I was not completely knocked out, I opened the door and left the chamber."

"My light had gone out."

Dead Men In Chamber

"I was certain five or six men in there with me were dead. I began an effort to escape."

"It was hopelessly dark. I crawled over any number of bodies in an effort to find the way out."

"I instinctively crawled upward every time I found a place where the passages sloped upward."

"It seemed to me like I was in there for days."

"Finally I saw the lights carried by the men working at the bottom of the shaft."

"I reached them and was sent to the top."

"Until two months ago, I worked as a day laborer at Ardmore."

"I was a miner in an endeavor to make more money."

"Never again!"

McKinney is 27 years old. He

Strip 7000 Miles Long in Antipodes Is Darkened By Phenomenon

(By United Press)

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Jan. 14.—Great success in observation of the solar eclipse, which darkened a 7000-mile strip throughout the Antipodes, was reported by Dr. John A. Miller, astronomer of Swarthmore college, in a cablegram received here today.

Dr. Miller, with a staff of assistants, observed and photographed the phenomenon from a point near Benkoelen, island of Sumatra.

Text of the cablegram will be released later in the day, Dean Walters, of the college, announced.

NATIVES AWED BY TOTAL ECLIPSE

LONDON, Jan. 14.—While natives watched in awe, the sun went into eclipse today in the Far East. It was carefully observed by the British Sumatra expedition, according to a cablegram received from Benkoelen by the royal observatory of Greenwich.

The message declared that the weather was perfect and that the observations were carried out as planned. The solar corona was similar to that observed in India in 1895.

Scientists hope that study of their photographs will give them valuable data on the Einstein relativity theory, together with fresh information on the corona's pearly halo.

EIGHT EXPEDITIONS OBSERVE ECLIPSE

SEMARANG, Siam, Jan. 14.—Eight international scientific expeditions of American, Dutch, English and Rumanian origin observed today's sun eclipse in Sumatra.

It was a total eclipse and four expeditions reported that the weather conditions were favorable for observation.

Two others were in doubt as to the results of their observations, while the last two are stationed in the interior without cable communication.

NO WORD FROM AMERICAN PARTY

PASADENA, Jan. 14.—Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of Mt. Wilson observatory, said shortly before noon today that he had not received word from the Sumatra expedition of the U. S. Naval observatory, viewing the eclipse of the sun in the Far East. Dr. Adams expects a cable from Dr. John A. Anderson, physicist of the local observatory, who is a member of the American expedition viewing the solar event.

MINERS' UNION GIVEN REBUKE

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 14.—The first action of the Pennsylvania legislature on anthracite coal regulation was taken by the state senate, today when the committee on mines and mining reported favorably the Woodward bill repealing provisions of the miners' certificate law.

This action is taken as a rebuke to the miners' union. The bill lets down the bars for employment of non-union labor.

The special session adjourned for the week without taking further action on Governor Pinchot's plan of state and interstate regulation of the anthracite industry at its session today.

WILL DEDICATE TEMPLE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14.—James C. Burger, of Denver, imperial potentate of Shriner, arrived here today to preside at the secret ceremonies incident to dedication of the new $2,500,000 Los Angeles Shrine temple. Private dedication of the temple will be followed by a public ceremony, January 23.

HAYS IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14.—Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers' association, arrived here today from New York on his semi-annual inspection of the film plants.

Nationalizing British Coal Mines Proposed

(By United Press)

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Nationalization of British coal mines was proposed today in a gigantic scheme submitted by the Miners' federation to the national commission investigating the coal mining industry.

I went into the mine early last night with a rescue party and stayed until John Almond, deputy state mine inspector, ordered everyone out, shortly before midnight.

A falling wall of slate almost blocked our exit. A former A.E.F. sergeant and old-time miner still called a panic by sheer personality.

We went 198 feet straight down into the earth, thence a distance said to have been 1600 feet deeper down a slope to the interior of the mine.

Find 31 Miners Dead

At the end of this slope, just outside a mine chamber door, were 31 miners—all dead.

The first man we found was Barney Daley, one of the mine's fire bosses, the men who test the mine for gas.

Daley apparently had discovered the danger and was leading the men out when the explosion occurred.

A short distance away lay a man known as "Big Alec," the other fire boss.

There were no marks visible on Daley. He apparently had been killed by internal injuries caused by the force of the explosion or by effects of the deadly gas.

He was crumpled up in the center of the slope a few feet in advance of the others. Nearby lay A. B. Thomas, of Hartshorn, a civil engineer, who had been doing some surveying in the mine.

The explosion had thrown him against the ground with terrific force.

Hit By Falling Rocks

Falling rocks had struck him and he was not recognizable, but was identified by his watch and surveying instruments, one of which still was clasped in his hand.

All the rest were negroes—all dead.

Three of them were in sitting position, with backs against the wall, as if they had been overcome by gas after having been stunned.

Suddenly a flickering light appeared up the slope as rescuers prepared to take some of the bodies to the bottom of the shaft on improvised stretchers.

"Everybody out," the man with the flickering light ordered. "Fourteenth level entrance is on fire."

Visions of smoldering fires at the entrance of mine chambers on the 13th and 14th levels came up to mind.

"Who ordered you out?" Henry Reed, former old-time miner and A. E. F. sergeant, who had assumed leadership of the party, asked. "John Almond," the man shouted.

"Everyone hastily started up the tortuous slope, back to the bottom of the 168-foot stairway."

There were places up this slope where a person could walk upright, other places where it was necessary to crawl on hands and knees, still others where it was necessary to wriggle through, caused by rock and slate falling in the passageway.

"Don't stampede, men," shouted Reed. "Take it slow."

As we hurriedly fled toward the

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14.—Editors of Southern California newspapers gathered at the University of Southern California today to take part in the fourth annual Journalism day of journalism students and hear an address on "Benjamin Franklin" by H. C. Hotelling, executive secretary of the National Editorial association.

The editors are here primarily to attend the annual business meeting of the Southern California Editorial association, which meets at the Clark hotel tomorrow and Saturday.

The visitors will be guests of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce at a banquet tomorrow night.

INTERIOR OF MINE PLACE OF HORRORS

Rescue Party Penetrating Oklahoma Death Colliery Finally Is Ordered Out

31 DEAD ENCOUNTERED

Three in Sitting Position, Backs Against Wall; Find Fire Bosses' Bodies

BY CURTIS WARD (Copyright, 1926, by United Press)

WILBURTON, Okla., Jan. 14.—The interior of Dugan-McConnell mine No. 21 is a place of horror.

I went into the mine early last night with a rescue party and stayed until John Almond, deputy state mine inspector, ordered everyone out, shortly before midnight.

A falling wall of slate almost blocked our exit. A former A.E.F. sergeant and old-time miner still called a panic by sheer personality.

Report Yankee Attacked by Italian Consul

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—An investigation of a report that an American citizen was attacked by the Italian consul at Athens, Greece, was asked by the state department today in a cable to Irwin B. Laughlin, American minister at Athens. It was alleged that the American was attacked for failure to remove his hat when the Italian consul entered the anteroom of the Italian consulate. The American had entered the consulate, mistaking it for the Hungarian office adjoining.

TWO KILLED IN PLANE PLUNGE AT SAN DIEGO

(By United Press)

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 14.—Plunging into the bay from a height of 1500 feet when one of the wings of their plane collapsed, two naval aviators were killed here today.

The dead:

LT. FREDERICK KAHN, pilot, attached to the V-F squadron No. 2.

SEAMAN BURK LAW, first class attached to the local station.

Before the plane had struck, several boats in the harbor had noticed its predicament and were speeding toward the spot where it appeared likely to crash.

Lieutenant Kahn recently was transferred from the battleship Colorado, stationed at San Pedro.

Law's home address, according to records here, is 133 Stokesland avenue, Schoolfield, Va. He was 25 years old and made the fatal flight as a passenger.

Officers at the air station believe the damaged wing prevented the men from making use of their parachutes.

MILLION LOST IN GALVESTON FIRE

GALVESTON, Tex., Jan. 14.—Conservative estimates today placed the loss at close to $1,000,000 in the fire which ravaged the waterfront here last night and early today.

Four wharves, four blocks of warehouse facilities near the business section of the city, approximately 40 carloads of freight and at least 4000 bales of cotton were either wholly destroyed or badly damaged.

The blaze was started in the east end of the Mallory line docks, near Pier 22.

A strong northeast wind carried flying brands toward the business district, but no serious blaze resulted there.

No lives were reported lost.

TWO TRAINMEN DIE IN KANSAS WRECK

INDEPENDENCE, Kas., Jan. 14.—W. A. Reed, engineer, of Ossawatimie, Kas., and Dave Woodward, fireman, Kansas City, were killed when a Missouri Pacific passenger train was wrecked near here, early today.

The train, No. 116, operates between Little Rock and Kansas City and was due in Kansas City at 7:20 a. m.

Ed Bemish, conductor, was slightly injured, but no passengers were hurt.

Cause of the wreck has not been determined.

Extradition Pact Signed with Cuba

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—An extradition treaty, supplementing the present treaty between the United States and Cuba, was signed in Havana today by American Ambassador Crowder and Secretary of State of Cuba de Cespedes.

The treaty has in view the better administration of justice in the two countries.

STOCKMEN IN SESSION

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 14.—Charles M. O'Connell, Albuquerque, N. M., and Lucas C. Britte, Marfa, Tex., were advanced today as candidates for president of the National Livestock association, in annual convention here.

Fred H. Bixby, Long Beach, Calif., president the last four years, announced he would not be a candidate.

CLEW LOOMS IN SANTA FE RAIL MURDER

Army Officer Arrested in Monterey May Be Connected with Mail Holdup

AIKIN HELD FOR TRIAL

Lieutenant Is Declared to Have Confessed Participating in Train Robbery

(By United Press)

MONTEREY, Calif., Jan. 14.—Declaration that Lt. Clarence Aikin had confessed to his supply sergeant, Charles C. Barnes, participating in a train robbery near San Diego, in which an express messenger was shot, was made today by William Ryan, city marshal at Pacific Grove, where Barnes is held.

Ryan said that Barnes not only confessed to him the attempted robbery of the Monterey Theaters train, but told him that Aikin, now held for trial on the robbery charge, had related the entire circumstances of the San Diego robbery to Barnes.

Mrs. Aikin, according to Ryan's report of Barnes' alleged confession to him, knew all the details of the San Diego case and also that Aikin kept burglar tools in their home.

Aikin's bondsman reported this afternoon they had secured $4000 additional bail ordered by the justice court and would turn it in at any time in order to insure Aikin's liberty until his superior court trial at Salinas.

SAN DIEGO OFFICERS SUSPECT LIUTENANT.

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 14.—Belief that Lt. Clarence Aikin, held at Monterey for suspected safe-breaking, may have been connected with the holdup of a Santa Fe train near here last August, was expressed by police authorities today.

Charles Campbell, express messenger, was killed in the sensational holdup. Army cavalry equipment was used to enter the express car and at the first investigation, local officers say, Lieutenant Aikin aided in tracing the equipment.

Aikin and a Sergeant Barnes were arrested in Monterey and detained for investigation after a kit of safe-breaking tools had been found in their quarters.

BENCH WARRANT FOR AIKIN PROBABLE

MONTEREY, CALIF., Jan. 14.—Unless Lt. Clarence K. Aikin is able today to raise $8000 bail bond, a bench warrant will be issued and he will be taken into custody on the charge of attempted burglary, under which he has been held for trial, authorities here indicated.

Aikin's bondsman on his former bail of $4000 were endeavoring to secure the increased bonds for the officer. They are his father-in-law, Guy R. Carpenter and E. Hare.

Sgt. Charles C. Barnes, arrested with Aikin in connection with the attempt to rob the safe of the Monterey Theaters company and who testified against Aikin has been removed to the county jail at Salinas.

Three Missing In Michigan Blaze

CONGRESSMAN ILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The condition of Representative John Baker, Democrat, California, was unchanged today, his office announced, but is not regarded as serious.

Delay Hanging of Convicted Slayer

SAN QUENTIN, Jan. 14.—Mauricio Trinidad, convicted slayer, of San Bernardino county, will not hang tomorrow, despite the fact that "invitations" to the execution were mailed out and all arrangements completed.

Publication in San Bernardino of the report that Trinidad was to die tomorrow brought a telephone call from the convict's attorneys there, revealing that an appeal from the sentence is on file. Warden F. J. Smith had received no previous word of the appeal.

The supreme court will hear Trinidad's plea on March 8. If the appeal is refused, a new date for the hanging will be necessary.

Scent Bomb Plot At San Quentin

SAN QUENTIN, Jan. 14.—Prison authorities here were on guard today against a possible outbreak of convicts, while they attempted to solve an apparent bomb plot.

Discovery was made that a quantity of powerful fulminating caps and 50 feet of fuse had been stolen from the stone quarry near the prison.

It is feared the explosive was stolen by a convict and is concealed about the prison in preparation for a dash for liberty by inmates.

BOND PAYMENT BY SOUTH FEARED OF WORLD COURT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Irreconcilables stirred the senate to heated debate today, when they asserted that the world court might force southern states to pay some $300,000,000 of repudiated Civil war debts to British bondholders.

Senator Jim Reed, Missouri, Democrat, declared he could prove that the court could assume jurisdiction over the repudiated Confederate and order construction bonds and order southern states to pay.

Youth Faces Death by Firing Squad

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14.—Unless eleventh-hour executive clemency is granted, Ralph Seybold, a Defiance, O., youth, will be executed by a firing squad at the Utah penitentiary, Salt Lake City, tomorrow morning.

Seybold, convicted of killing a policeman, chose to face an array of riflemen rather than die on a scaffold.

Armed with a personal appeal from Gov. Vic Donahey, of Ohio, a delegation of Defiance citizens and Seybold's relatives was due in Salt Lake City today to appeal to Gov. George J. Dern, of Utah, for mercy.

TWO HIJACKERS EXECUTED FOR DOUBLE KILLING

(By United Press)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 14.—Owen "Cannonball" Baker and Harry Sowash, hijackers and murderers, went to the gallows today for the murder of Capt. Charles Gillis and his son, of the launch Beryl G.

Shortly before dawn, they were led to the gallows at Oskala jail and hanged.

"Step on it, kid," remarked Sowash to Ellis, the Canadian executioner, as he walked to the scaffold in the prison yard.

Baker went to the gallows smoking a cigar.

About 100 persons witnessed the hanging, which was carried out in a drenching rain.

Baker was not the "Cannonball" Baker of race track fame.

Captain Gillis and his 17-year-old son were slain Sept. 15, 1924, when the hijackers attacked the Beryl G. off Turn Point, Pender Island. The Beryl G. was later found floating loose, bloodstained, riddled with bullets and deserted.

The Beryl G. had met a Scotch ship named the Comet near the 12-mile limit and had taken on a cargo of rum for Tacoma, it was said.

After the attack, the pirates threw the bodies of their two victims overboard.

Charles Morris, a third man found guilty of the murder, escaped the death penalty. His sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

MONARCHIST PLOT IN GERMANY SEEN

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—Rumors of plans for a "Putsch" coup from monarchist elements were revived here today, following arrests of a number of members of the so-called "Black Reichswehr" (army).

The police are watching closely the Kuestrin district, a short distance north of Berlin, since there the clandestine activities of the reactionaries are reported.

Today's arrests recalled the Putsch attempt of 1923 at Kuestrin, which was put down by early discovery.

KILLS WIFE, GETS SHAVE, GIVES UP

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 14.—John Butchek, 46, foundry man, murdered his wife, got a shave and then visited police headquarters today.

"I've killed my wife," he said. "She struck me with an ax. I took it away from her and hit her over the head—I don't know how many times."

Butchek said he and his wife had quarreled for a long time over the attentions another man paid her.

Break In Cold Spell Promised

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 14.—A break in the cold spell, which has been general for the entire state the last five days, was predicted today by the U. S. weather bureau.

has a wife and three children. His father and younger brother were killed in the disaster.

Fire Under Control

Fire, which raged all night in the mine, was brought under control early today and preparations were started to remove the bodies of the remaining miners known to be dead in the mine.

All night long rescue teams worked in peril of their lives. Parts of the mine are still filled with gas, but nevertheless workers went down, curtailed off the gas-filled chambers and fought the flames.

Most of the bodies will be brought up today, but some which are covered with debris in remote passages cannot be reached for a week, it is estimated.

It is possible for any of the miners to be alive, officials say. Sixty state troopers under Major General Baird H. Markham and Col. E. L. Head are on duty around the mine.

There was little sleep in Wilburton and vicinity last night. Scores of relatives and friends of the entombed miners thronged around the ill-fated mine.

Weather Bitterly Cold

Bitter cold weather did not drive them to cover. Hundreds of people spent the night standing around huge bonfires or huddled on seats of closed cars.

Miss Nora Brooks and Miss Mary Jane Grant, telephone operators, remained at their switchboards all day Wednesday and all night until this morning.

Cadet Florence Sebastian, Cadet Robert Bunch and Soldier Helen Rose, of the Salvation Army worked nearly 18 hours continuously dishing out the free coffee and sandwiches.

The Salvation Army was the only relief organization on the job up to this morning.

From time to time a call was sounded for volunteers to do something and always a number responded. The negroes made the night weird with their cries and moans for relatives lost in the mine.

Henry Phillips, one of the eight negroes to escape alive, has four sons still in the mine. They are all dead. One of the eight rescued negroes is crippled and hobbled out of the mine with a cane after the explosion.

stairway, a bunch of slate, which had been propped up in one of the narrow places, fell. Someone in the rush to get out had struck the prop.

Most of the dozen men in the party became panic-stricken. "Steady, don't stampede or none of us will get out," shouted Reed. "You fellows are going the wrong way."

Reed saved the situation. All the men calmed down, came back and took the right turn which was plainly marked with chalk.

Fresh Air Forced Down

Rescue parties had been forced to enter the mine by way of the "manway" beside the air passage, where fresh air is forced into the mine.

The hoist was being used exclusively in getting stretchers down and bodies up.

The "manway," an emergency exit, is 10 feet long, four feet wide and 188 feet straight down into the earth.

A stairway, built in sections, runs from the top of the ground to the "slope."

These sections, two feet wide, zigzag from top to the bottom of the "manway." They are wet, slimy and steep. As the men crowded around the bottom, Reed shouted: "Only one man at a time on each section of these stairs. They are weak."

Some of the men continued to crowd, and someone else took up the cry of a man to each section of the stairway.

The slow, heart-breaking climb, 188 feet to the surface, began.

Section by Section

"You wait and go just ahead of me, keeping one section of the stairway ahead of me at all times," Reed, who had been taken down, said. As the last man except Reed and myself mounted the second of the stairs, I started up.

"Go slow; it is a long, hard climb and you'll give out if you hurry," counseled Reed.

Before we were half way up, I was gasping for breath and Reed was panting behind me.

"Go slowly," cautioned Reed again.

At last the top was reached.

Two hundred yards to the northeast, the crowd around the mouth of the shaft was strangely silent.

Down the hillside toward Wilburton, where the wives and children of many of the dead miners were clustered, in the vale of sorrow, a piercing wail of a woman rang out.

And work of forcing the Degnan-McConnell mine No. 21 to reluctantly give up its dead was halted for the time being.

APPRECIATION OF SERVICES RENDERED COUNTY BY JUDGE WEST TOLD IN RESOLUTIONS

Adopting laudatory resolutions of appreciation for the judicial career of Superior Judge Z. B. West, now about to retire from the bench after nearly 24 years of service, the Orange County Bar association last night formally placed on record its previously announced attitude toward the three judgeships to be filled at elections this year.

Judge R. Y. Williams and Judge E. J. Marks, colleagues of Judge West, were given a resolution of confidence and urged to be candidates to succeed themselves. Judge West, in a letter to the association, had announced that "under no consideration whatever would he be a candidate for re-election. His decision, he said, was due to the condition of his health and the advice of his physicians, as well as because he already had served for so many years.

Indorse Present Judges

In its resolution, indorsing Judges Williams and Marks, the association requested the two jurists to be candidates for the two "long terms" of six years that must be filled this year. The other post to be filled is for four years and the bar association recommended that any other candidates for judge who may appear, direct their campaigns toward election for the four-year term.

In his letter to the bar association Judge West thanked the members of the bar for their "very kind and considerate treatment of him" during his service on the bench. He was wholly unable to express his appreciation, he wrote.

The association's reply, in its resolution, commented on the "integrity, faithfulness and fairness" with which Judge West has fulfilled his duties during his four terms as judge.

The recent death of Attorney Otto Sanaker, of Santa Ana, noted in another resolution passed last night as a loss to the bar. The resolution bore testimony to the "high character, integrity and untiring zeal" of the deceased attorney.

Inconvenience of the present law library led to steps by the bar association last night to secure suitable quarters for a library in the new annex to the courthouse, when that structure is built. The association also made known its desire that when the annex is built, it include two courtrooms, so that four departments of the superior court can be grouped together.

Need Fourth Department

There are at present but three departments but the attorneys feel, it is said, that a fourth department will be needed within the not very distant future, judging from the present growth of court business. Such a courtroom could be put to other uses until needed as a court, it is felt.

President H. J. Forgy was authorized to name a committee to press the two matters before the county supervisors and the grand jury.

Laud Judge West

Following is the resolution relating to the proposed retirement of Judge West:

Whereas, the Honorable Z. B. West, judge of the superior court of the state of California, in and for the county of Orange, has advised this bar association that under no circumstances would he be a candidate for re-election, to succeed himself.

Whereas, the said Z. B. West has served and almost completed four full six year terms as judge of the said superior court, and

Whereas, the said Z. B. West has served this county with the utmost integrity, faithfulness and fairness, and has at all times maintained that dignity which fittingly becomes one in his high position.

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Orange County Bar association, in regular meeting assembled, that we do hereby express our heartfelt appreciation for the service rendered to the county at large and to this bar association in particular by the Hon. Z. B. West.

Be it resolved, that a proper photograph be taken of the said Z. B. West at the expense of this association, and at all times publicly displayed in the courtroom of department one of the superior court of Orange county, that being the court in which the said judge has given almost 24 years of faithful service.

Be it further resolved, that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this meeting, and that a copy thereof, under the seal of this association, be given to the Hon. Z. B. West, and a copy thereof be also given to the public press.

Candidacies Are Urged

Relative to the candidacies for superior judge, the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, it has come to the knowledge of this bar association that Z. B. West, one of the judges of the superior court of the county of Orange, state of California, will not be a candidate to succeed himself.

Whereas, there are two other judges now sitting in said superior court, to-wit, R. Y. Williams and E. J. Marks, who are judges of the highest integrity and character, and

Whereas, in the coming election there will be two tickets on the ballot, one for the full term of six years, in which there are to be two judges elected, one for an unexpired term of four years, in which there is to be only one judge elected.

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Orange County Bar association, that it does hereby express its utmost confidence in the integrity and ability of the Hon. R. Y. Williams and the Hon. E. J. Marks, judges of the superior court of the county of Orange, state of California;

Second, that this bar association earnestly solicits these two judges to become candidates for the office of judge of the superior court to succeed themselves at the general primaries and elections in 1926;

Third, that this bar association recommends that both of the aforementioned judges become candidates for the full term of six years on one ticket;

ORGANIZER TO ADDRESS SANTA ANA CHAMBER

Plans were completed today by directors of the senior and junior divisions of the Greater Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce for changing the open forum meeting scheduled for next Monday night to the following evening.

The change was made to accommodate the program arrangements made some weeks ago by the senior directors to have the Hon. Colvin B. Brown, of Washington, D. C., here to address an open meeting of the membership.

Brown is head of the organization service bureau of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, and is said to have an important message to deliver on community rebuilding, and particularly for advancing chamber of commerce work in communities in which such organizations exist.

The meeting Tuesday night will be held in Ketter's cafe, with dinner preceding the program. In view of the prominence of the speaker, efforts will be made to have a large number of members of the two divisions present.

Special entertainment will be provided by a group of vaudeville entertainers from the West Coast-Walker theater. The group is composed entirely of men and will present the same program it will give at the theater under the title of "Perfume."

Directors of the senior division this morning named A. B. Rousseau and John Newcomer as a committee on athletics, with special instruction to arrange a series of athletic events between members of two divisions.

Resolutions urging the Pacific Electric Railway company to erect a depot on its property on East Fourth street were indorsed.

Several matters of minor importance also were disposed of by the board.

Proposed Sale Of Legion Home To Be Discussed

Members of Santa Ana post, 131, American Legion, will meet in the Legion home on Birch street at 8 o'clock tonight for a dinner, to be served by the women of the auxiliary, after which the men will discuss whether or not to sell their building and property.

It is understood that the post has received a flattering offer for the property and should it decide to sell, it will be for a profit which will allow the erection of another home in a more suitable location in the city.

Plans also will be discussed for the forming of an Athletic league, in which members of the post will participate. The plan is to organize baseball and basketball teams and to sponsor other sports.

Your Child's Cold needs this

Double-Treatment

DON'T dose a child for a cold. You may upset the little one's digestion. Better use what thousands of mothers have learned to depend upon. Simply rub Vicks VapoRub over the child's throat and chest at bedtime and get the benefit of its two-fold action:—

- (1) Direct to the inflamed air passages by its medicated vapors, released by the body heat, and
- (2) Direct through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the soreness and pain.

Good for the colds of all the family.

MITCHELL SETS ELECTION DATE
R. P. Mitchell, county superintendent of schools, today fixed February 20 as the date for the special election to be held in the newly organized Brea-Olinda district for the purpose of selecting a site for the new high school plant.

Two locations, one known as the Birch street site, the other known as the Hambleton-Blanchard site, have been certified as being favored by the school trustees, and will appear on the ballot.
In connection with the approaching election, Superintendent Mitchell urges upon every voter of the school district to renew his or her registration as voter.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN
By BEAUNASH
Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

THE CORRECT AND COMPLETE WARDROBE
Intentions are like fainting ladies. They miss their purpose unless they are carried out. Many a man makes the resolution that during 1926 he will pay closer attention to his appearance; that he will acquire a complete and correct wardrobe; that he will only permit others to see him at his best. All this is worthy in intent, but worthless in effect unless it is put into practice at once. The way to go about it is to make out two lists. The first should be entitled, "I Have." The second should be "I Need."
Upon the first slip set down, under their separate headings, the number of articles of wear, from overcoat to undersuit, that you now possess and which are fit to remain in service. Under "I Need" write down those things which, having become well-worn or out-of-date, require immediate replacement.
This simple method of telling yourself where your wardrobe stands approximates a financial statement of how much you own and how much you owe. Of course, you may figure it out in your head if you are like the man who said, "I have a suit for every day in the week," and added, pointing to the one he had on, "this is it." Seriously, however, every one who makes any pretense to being well-dressed should take stock of his clothes at least twice a year, and that applies to all he wears, from hat to shoes.
Just now, there is a spreading vogue for the velvet-collar, figure-tracing Chesterfield overcoat. A velvet collar upon your overcoat renders it slightly formal in character. Though the soft hat is shown here in deference to popular preference, the derby is smarter and more appropriate. Never wear tan shoes, either light or dark, with the velvet-collar overcoat. Wear black shoes. Never wear the velvet-collar overcoat unless you also wear gloves. Don't merely carry them. Gloves off the hand have no more style than a collar off the neck.
The two indispensable overcoats in your wardrobe are the loose-draping, knockabout type with cloth collar and the single-breasted fly-front or the double-breasted button-through Chesterfield with velvet collar as pictured in the accompanying sketch. Possessing these two overgarments, change off wearing them. Looking the same every day doesn't raise you in your own opinion and tends to lower you in the opinion of others.

Calvin Jackson, well known former resident of Santa Ana, was killed in Burbank last night, when he was struck by the northbound Sunset express, passing through the Southern Pacific yards in that city.

Jackson was a conductor on a Southern Pacific freight train and yesterday was in charge of a work train, which was on a siding waiting for the express to pass. He had gone into the interlocking signal tower at the junction of the valley and coast lines. Upon coming out, he failed to see the oncoming train and stepped in front of it.

Carlson's Course Starts at Y. M. C. A.

"Plan your life as you plan your money expenditures. You have only one life to live—don't waste it for lack of a plan and a purpose. Budget your time as you budget your finances."

With such excellent advice as this, Dick Carlson introduced his course in salesmanship and personal development at the Y. M. C. A. last night in his opening lecture on "The Game of Life." He was heard by a large and attentive audience, many of whom have enrolled for the entire course of 10 lectures, to be given on Wednesday evenings at the Y. M. C. A.

In connection with Carlson's lecture, R. C. Smedley gave the first lesson in his series on memory training, demonstrating to the audience the ease with which they can memorize words and facts by the use of a simple system of concentration.

The plan of the course calls for the memory training lesson to be given at 7:30 o'clock, with Carlson's lecture to begin at 8:00 o'clock on each Wednesday evening. Carlson's subject for next Wednesday is "Building Your Thought Into Your Character." New students may enroll up to next Wednesday, but after that time, the class roll will be closed.

The election of directors will be the principal item of business. The remainder of the program will combine entertainment with information.

Flow of Blood Is Stopped by Fakir

MILAN, Jan. 14.—The Italian up-to-date fakir, Manetti, who recently made an extraordinary journey between Milan and Alessandria (about 60 miles apart) inclosed in a double coffin of zinc and wood, has just shown the Milan public another interesting experiment. Manetti had a vein in his arm opened by a doctor in the Communal theater, in Milan. He was able, as he had previously declared, to arrest the flow of blood at will, and fell into a trance which lasted a short time.

The experiment took place before a number of doctors and a limited party of invited guests.

JAIL AMUSES PRINCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Michael Romanoff, known to Paris as Prince Michael, likes jail, finding the tombs prison "not comfortable but amusing." He is being held in jail charged with passing a bad check.

BIG CAMPAIGN ON CHOCOLATE SALE PLANNED

What perhaps will be the most extensive advertising and sales campaign ever instituted in behalf of a product manufactured in Orange county, will be launched on January 20 for the Laguna Chocolate, made by the Roehm-Sylvester company, Inc., of Santa Ana.

The delicious Laguna Chocolates, already widely known, are destined to become even more popular, as a result of the campaign on behalf of the home product, it is pointed out, for it is the plan to introduce them into virtually every home in the county.

In order to add zest to the sales campaign, the sales force, which is to be organized into what will be known as the Laguna Chocolate club, will be liberally rewarded. The sales force will be drawn from the general public, and men, women, boys and girls of Orange county are eligible to enter.

Will Give Away Auto

Leading in the awards is a New Day Jewett sedan, to be given to a salesman or saleswoman, as yet unnamed, who leads in volume of chocolate sales. The car was purchased from and now is on display at the Mabey Motor company's salesrooms, Broadway at Sixth, Santa Ana.

Capital district awards include three radios, Radiola model 3-A four-tube, bought from the Robertson Electric company, and are to be seen at the company's establishment, 303 North Main street, Santa Ana.

Three beautiful diamond rings, purchased from the R. H. Ewart jewelry store, successors to E. B. Smith jewelry store, 113 West Fourth street, Santa Ana, comprise the grand awards for the three districts into which the county has been divided.

Cash Awards Assured

The Laguna Chocolate club, also will pay 10 per cent commission on chocolate sales to all sales people who remain active in the contest, but who do not receive one of the larger awards.

Awards are to be made on a basis of votes received by the candidates, who will sell coupons, good for a $1 box of Laguna chocolates, at any of the 14 leading drug stores in Orange county, co-operating in the campaign. Hard work and determination will be the principal requirements of the contestants.

One drug store in each town in the county will act as distributor of Laguna chocolates throughout the campaign, which opens January 20 and closes March 3.

Tomorrow Final Day for Payment Of City Licenses

Tomorrow is the last day that city licenses for the first quarter of the year 1926 can be paid without an added 10 per cent penalty and a general rush on the city clerk's office was made today by scores of persons who have waited until the eleventh hour to pay their license fees for January, February and March.

After tomorrow, the delinquent list will be completed and Earl Lentz, city license inspector, will begin his work of rounding up the delinquents.

From the number of persons who today paid their licenses, this list should be smaller than it usually is, according to a statement made by Lentz.

ASK POLICE TO AID IN SEARCH FOR BEACH MAN

That relatives and friends of George Neill, 44, secretary of the Balboa Chamber of Commerce and the Southern Seas club, have become worried by his continued absence, was revealed today when Newport Beach police were asked by Mrs. Neill to endeavor to find some clue which would solve the mysterious disappearance of the debonair clubman. Neill has been missing since January 5.

J. A. Porter, chief of police of Newport Beach, made a thorough search of Neill's rooms at 206 Bay avenue, Balboa, but was unable to find anything which would furnish a reason for his absence. According to Porter, a considerable amount of Neill's clothing was in the room and his car was in the garage.

Mrs. Neill resides at 1830 1-4 Whiteley avenue, Hollywood. She is employed in Hollywood.

Neill came to the beach community about two years ago. Previous to coming to California, he was connected in an official capacity with a large automobile manufacturing firm, it is understood.

Friends were at first inclined to believe that Neill simply was away for a few days on a business trip but his continued absence has caused them to fear that he has met with foul play. So far as is known, he had no enemies. He apparently was in the best of health.

ACCIDENT VICTIMS' CONDITION BETTER

The condition of Albert McMurdo, of 1116 North Olive avenue, who was severely injured when the automobile in which he and Mrs. McMurdo were riding, overturned in Ontario, Tuesday, is must improved, it was stated at the San Antonio hospital, Upland, today. Mrs. McMurdo, who has a broken nose and numerous bruises, undoubtedly will be discharged from the hospital in a few days, it was reported.

Mr. McMurdo is in a semi-conscious condition. It is thought that he has a fractured skull.

The accident happened when the Santa Ana man swerved his car to avoid striking a commercial car. He apparently lost control of the machine and it went into a ditch. The McMurdos were rushed to the San Upland hospital by passing motorists.

About Floor Coverings

When you select floor coverings for your home it is very important to bear in mind that they must withstand severe usage.

In fact, your rugs receive greater wear than any other item of home furnishings.

Therefore floor coverings which are bought on the basis of price alone will certainly prove the most expensive in the long run. Honest, genuine quality must be woven into each rug to insure lasting satisfaction.

The safe way to buy rugs is to make your selections at a store which deals in rugs and floor coverings of nationally advertised and nationally recognized quality.

New Rugs Have Arrived!

Over 700 to Choose from

CHANDLER'S huge stocks of quality floor coverings are attracting buyers not only from Santa Ana and Orange County, but from all over Southern California. With the arrival of the new patterns and new color notes, this is a most opportune time to make selections, no matter for any one room or for an entire house.

One of the most exclusive stocks of rugs in Southern California is to be found at all times at Chandler's. But now with many new arrivals and over 700 rugs to choose from, the stock is more inviting than usual. At least come and see the display.

We are showing the latest patterns from some of America's leading looms, including Whittall's, Sanford's and others.

Included in this notable showing you will find Anglo-Persians, America's finest rugs—together with two other types of Wiltons, Body Brussels, Seamless Chenille, and the nationally advertised Sanford Beauvais rugs which are seamless. We also carry in stock 9 ft., 10½ ft. and 12 ft widths of plain carpet from which rugs of any length may be made.

A few discontinued patterns which are to be dropped from our line are now offered at very attractive prices. Investigate and compare before deciding to buy floor coverings of any character.

Hostesses Conspire To Give Party on Natal Day

Golden-hued roses and pretty yellow tulips vied for supremacy in the artistic decorations employed by Mrs. Neal Beisel and Miss Mame Hayers Tuesday evening, when, in response to their invitation, a coterie of warm friends gathered at the Beisel home on Cypress avenue to aid in celebrating the natal day of Miss Grace Roberts, Mrs. Beisel's sister.

The spacious rooms presented a true flower garden effect with blossoms smiling from every nook and corner. Candelabra on the tables were bases for tulip beds and even score pencils blossomed in roses. Progressive games were introduced in the early evening hours with favors going to Miss Edith Watkins and Mrs. J. P. Williams. The final game was a "watch contest" in which Miss Roberts was presented a beautiful Gruen wrist watch, gift of her sister.

Games were followed by an invitation to the diningroom where a delectable three course supper was served at a table embodying the same decorative scheme that prevailed elsewhere. In the center was a boat formed of flower petals and with a gay little Kewpie helmsman, who was declared to typify Miss Roberts as she sails into the new year followed by the wishes of her friends that the voyage be a rosy one.

As a token of the love and esteem of her friends, the honoree was presented with a "copy of Gainsborough's 'Blue Boy' in a gold-leaf frame, Mrs. Warren Brakeman in her clever manner, making the presentation a speech. Guests of Mrs. Beisel and Miss Hayers were Mesdames M. M. Holmes, Max Holmes, Earl Morris, C. W. Brakeman, J. P. Williams, J. W. Ferris, Lyle Roberts and the Misses Bertha Bates, Effie White, Edith Watkins, Annie Platt, Gertrude Minor, Jennie Lasby, Lula Minter and Ida Nay.

Parkridge Club House Extends Hospitality To News Writers

Fortunate indeed were newspaper folk of Southern California who yesterday were guests at the handsome new Parkridge Country club near Corona with the entire amusement facilities of the club placed at their disposal for the day.

Prominent writers from all over the Southland gathered for an afternoon of golf, the Parkridge course offering particularly fine sport. The crowd was augmented at the dinner hour by many new arrivals who enjoyed an extremely appetizing dinner impeccably served.

Well arranged and artistically furnished, the clubhouse is a joy to visit, and probably no room in it has more charm than the dining room with its unique lighting effects and the gayety loaned by lacquer red furnishings. The tables were in complete harmony with their appointments which included china in a very lovely pattern, silver, richly conservative, marked with a P. C. C. monogram, and floral appointments of glowing red carnations.

J. Scott Chisholm, famous Los Angeles Express sports writer, was master of ceremonies and his genial manner and broad Scots made the after-dinner interval of speech-making and merriment, unusually enjoyable. There were no long talks, an atmosphere of gay informality prevailing throughout the evening. Different members of the profession however, were called upon for remarks from time to time, and many were the clever stories related—most of them with a pronounced Scottish flavor and directed at the toastmaster.

During the course of the speaking, Mr. Chisholm complimented the club's founder, Dan Gilkey of Long Beach, in the highest of terms and expressed the appreciation of newspaper men generally, for the unceasing courtesies shown them at the clubhouse, with its complete equipment and unsurpassable location.

Mr. Gilkey responded with a short talk in which he stressed the sports program of the club, declaring that it would offer every cooperation to the golf program as instituted this year in Los Angeles in the California open tournament just ended. Next year, according to the speaker, Parkridge will take a prominent part in the affair.

With the conclusion of the dinner and its hour of merriment, guests were invited to the ballroom on the second floor where an excellent orchestra offered one of the pleasantest of dance programs. The affair was the usual Wednesday night informal dance and called a goodly number of Parkridge members from Riverside, San Bernardino, Pomona, Corona and other nearby communities.

A friendly air prevailed, and the newspaper guests were enthusiastic in their praises of the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Gilkey and Manager Means of the clubhouse, as well as of the beautiful surroundings. For placed on an eminence beyond Corona, the clubhouse occupies an unusual position, its broad balconies commanding a sweep of view that is arresting even to eyes used to California's breadth of canvas.

Approximately half a hundred newspaper folk accepted the hospitality of the club at some time during the afternoon or evening. Santa Ana Register writers making reservation were Mason Youd, assistant managing editor, with Mrs. Youd, Eleanor Young Elliott, social editor and Horace Pine, automobile editor.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Distinguished Speakers
With the auspicious opening of a New Year the Woman's Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church held its stated meeting yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the church.

The large number present and the prevailing air of expectancy intimated the double privilege of having two prominent speakers, Miss Roberta Barr, field representative for the Board of National Missions and Mrs. O. J. Lowe, stewardship secretary for the Presbyterian, on the program for the day.

The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. H. A. Allen who offered prayer for Jewish evangelization and for the welfare and protection of missionaries of every land. Mrs. J. R. Medlock, topic leader for the afternoon, presented Miss Roberta Barr as the gifted guest of the society.

"Thy Kingdom Come" was the theme upon which Miss Barr, a dynamo of enthusiasm carried the current of thought along lines of progress from the barbaric to enlightenment of nations; citing the changes which the coming of the kingdom in the hearts of men has wrought when compared with the white-heating practices of Africa; the cruel foot-binding of China; the spirit-worshipping of the Indians of Arizona; of the uplift of the womanhood of the world by the divine gift that changes every outlook.

With hammer strokes Miss Barr emphasized the retarding of the cause by lack of funds. She said "some people hold up their dollars and look through them before deciding to part with them. Friends follow your industrial dollars in their office of bringing in the Kingdom and note the building and agricultural progress they have made possible in bleak and desolated places. Rolling onward, follow your medical dollars as they bring attention and cure and life in hospitals and clinics. In one hospital alone in India 12,000 persons have been restored to sight by a single physician. Follow further your educational dollars and mark the noble service of Christian men and women in schools and churches."

Trailing the educational dollar to a remote home in North Carolina she told the pathetic story of little Trudy returning from the mission school to her forlorn mountain cabin. "Mammy we uns has got to have a flag." "What mought a flag be Trudy?" "I be gwine to make one an then ye'll see." An old red flannel skirt, a soiled salt bag and a bit of faded blue rag and the flag was made and hung in a tree. Said Trudy, "All the rest of you uns has jest got to know yer country has a flag."

Interspersing her engrossing lecture with such cleverly told incidents and flashes of humor Miss Barr in closing urged the re-valuing of money; the specific prayer for needs and the upholding of ideals for which Christianity stands as represented by missions.

Mrs. O. J. Lowe, taking in charge the devotional hour was introduced by Mrs. Medlock. In prefacing her talk Mrs. Lowe spoke of her intimate acquaintance with Miss Estella Daniels and her work in Valparaiso, Chile, giving a tribute of praise and esteem to this much loved missionary.

In taking Genesis first as a basis, Mrs. Lowe beautifully unfolded her argument that all things were created for, but never given to man; that the Maker still holds inviolate ownership of all things, stewardship being but the channel of his glory, where Time is given on trust.

Mrs. Allen read a communication from a Korean hospital containing 600 lepers, acknowledging linen and packages sent by the local society. The letter told of 23 lepers

Eastern Guest Shares Party Honors with Miss Buell

The attractive home of Miss Alta Buell on West First street was thrown open to a few close friends last night in celebration of two events, the visit here of Mrs. Florence Innis of Mecheun, Mass., and the birthday anniversary of the hostess, Miss Buell.

Mrs. Innis is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ernest Backman, and is making many warm friends during her stay. The evening planned in her honor was a delightful one, with music to add its charms when the Misses Elenor and Louise Pearce, attractive young nieces of Miss Buell, played several piano numbers.

Many pretty gifts and a host of good wishes were showered on the hostess, whose birthday was further recognized in the delicious cake served at a late hour with fruit punch.

Enjoying the pleasant evening with Miss Buell and her honor guest, Mrs. Innis, were Mesdames Ida Blakeley, Ethel McIntyre, Maude Hungerford, Alice Backman, Anna Pearce, May Foster, Grace Turner, Gladys Hoglund and Clara Mechem and the Misses Beulah Cornett, Hattie Cornett, Julia Campbell, Flora Campbell, Nellen Bunker, Louise and Elenor Pearce.

at one time being turned away from the gates because of lack of room, of the 12 families of mis-erables living in a settlement segregated from the lepers, and of the prospect of an industrial farm.

Mrs. W. W. Anderson read greetings from Miss Anna Alger who is now in New York city but will return to Santa Ana in February. The president gave the Presbyterian report which held items of general interest and closed the enjoyable meeting with a parting "Miz-neh."

In the Otis Home

The Congregational Missionary society held a very enjoyable meeting yesterday afternoon in the beautiful home of Mrs. William Otis. There was an especially large attendance to hear the interesting program in charge of Mrs. P. L. Tope, president. Mrs. Schrock directed the devotional service, choosing the topic, "Prayer as a Power in Bringing the World to Christ."

Mrs. Livingston, a guest from La Habra, played a beautiful piano solo. Mrs. Bruner gave a pleasing resume of the last chapters of the study book "Over the Border." This was followed by two duets, "Merry Birds of Spring" and "Sweetest Story Ever Told," sung by Mrs. Ray Barker and Mrs. Schlagenhofer with Mrs. Livingston at the piano. The presence of the singers was appreciated by the society and the beautiful music brought pleasure to all.

The address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Mildred Ricciardi, head of Americanization work in Santa Ana. It was listened to with the closest attention. No one could doubt the speaker's earnestness and love for her work and she inspired others with a desire to help her solve her problems.

Mrs. C. F. Crose in her report of missionary activities, spoke of the Christmas fund for ministerial relief which was larger than usual this year. She closed with two beautiful parables of "Safed the Sage," an author well known to readers of the Congregationalist. Announcement that Mrs. J. E. Gowan had consented to accept the presidency of the union for the coming year was received with applause.

A social hour followed as the hostesses, Mesdames Tedford, Gowan, Smart and Nealey served delicious refreshments of tea, sandwiches and cakes.

CALL BIDS FOR CARBON CANYON HIGHWAY WORK

The board of supervisors of San Bernardino county will open bids on February 8 for grading and surfacing of Carbon canyon highway through the hills south of Chino, according to information from San Bernardino, received here today.

This is a definite step in plans for improving the highway from the Chino section direct to the Orange county line, where it crosses Carbon canyon a mile or more beyond Olinda.

Plans and specifications adopted provide for a 24-foot roadway through the hills with a maximum grade of eight per cent. Many of the scores of hairpin turns on the present road will be eliminated and instead there will be a smooth highway with easy grades and sweeping curves, according to the survey plans approved.

Grading of the highway will be the first step and paving will follow later. It was intimated by the San Bernardino supervisors, in giving consideration to the call for bids.

Improvement of the route will make a better road into Orange county and to Orange county beaches for residents of Ontario, Upland, Cucamonga, Chino and other points in the west end of San Bernardino county. The new highway will connect with South Central avenue, below Chino.

THRIFT IDEA WILL BE PRESENTED HERE

This afternoon, at a special meeting of the local Y. M. C. A. a committee on National Thrift week, plans will be completed for presenting the thrift idea to Santa Ana and vicinity during the nationally observed week, which begins next Sunday.

Cotton Mather, chairman of the subcommittee on speakers, reports that he already is receiving calls for speakers, which he is filling as rapidly as possible. He hopes to be able to supply special speakers on thrift topics to many occasions during the next 14 days. Clubs, classes and meetings of every sort, desiring speakers on the topic, are advised to communicate with Mather, who will undertake to find the men to serve them.

Motion Picture Players Married By S. A. Justice

William L. Boyd, 28, and Eleanor Fair, 22, motion picture players of some prominence, were married last night by Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison in the courthouse here, it was learned today.

The fact that the bride gave her name as Elinor Virginia Crowe on the marriage license application was instrumental in keeping the marriage a secret until today.

Boyd gave his address at 6129 Salem Place, Hollywood. Miss Fair said she lived at 3192 West Seventh street, Los Angeles. The marriage was Boyd's third, according to the application for a license, and Miss Fair's first.

Both of the players are being featured by Cecil B. DeMille in the filming of "The Volga Boatman."

A large number of scenes in the play were taken along the Sacramento river, it was said.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd did not announce their plans for a wedding trip.

FILIPINO ACTOR SATISFIED WITH TREATMENT ACCORDED HIM BY AMERICAN PEOPLE

Here is a young Filipino who is perfectly satisfied with the treatment given him by Uncle Sam and, moreover, is quite willing to spend the rest of his days in this country. His name is Jose Cobarrubias.

A few days ago, as "Joe Wong," at Hotel Santa Ana he registered, the stage name he uses with the West Coast theaters, Inc. For on the stage he is known as the Chinese syncopator, a direct importation from Canton, China.

It is a long way from a humble nipa shack, in the native section of old Manila, where he was born and raised to the glittering foot-lights of America's million-dollar jazz palaces. Some six years ago, Joe, then a mere lad of 16, bid a fond farewell to his parents in Manila and took passage on an army transport for San Francisco. While working his passage as a cabin boy, little did he think that at some future day he would be listed as a Chinese comedian on the vaudeville program of leading amusement places.

Earned $10 Month
On landing in San Francisco, a strange lad in a strange country, with but a smattering knowledge of English, he was thrown upon his own resources. Before the day was over, he had landed a job as house-boy with an American family at the rate of 10 dollars a month. Since that time he has refused long-term vaudeville contracts which would have netted him $500 a month.

"Whatever you get in this world will be the measure of your confidence in yourself to obtain it. Hold the thought that you can do a thing, and then go after it in a systematic manner," he observed, explaining his progress from a family domestic to a headliner on vaudeville programs.

"No other country in the world offers so many opportunities for ambitious young men as the United States, and if a young man can't make a success here, there is no hope for him," he added, commenting upon the unusual educational facilities placed at the disposal of every youth.

Apologizes for Posing
Of interest to the great number of theater-goers and vaudeville fans is Joe's apology for posing as a Chinaman, when, as a matter of fact, he is one of "our little brown brothers," as former Governor General W. H. Taft (now chief justice) termed the nation's wards.

"The appearance of a Filipino musician or singer, no matter how clever and accomplished, would be classed as a weak attraction on the average vaudeville program for the simple reason that the American people are accustomed to find musical talent among the Filipinos. The Filipinos are a musical race and almost every Filipino can play an instrument of some kind."

"Put a Chinese dress on the same performer and bill him as Fong Lee, Sy Cong Heng, or some other celestial sounding name, and he will go strong with the audience."

In addition to filling vaudeville engagements in different parts of the United States, the Filipino comedian has taken part in several motion picture productions, including "The Man Who Saw Tomorrow," "The Thief of Bagdad," "Feet of Clay," "Temple of Venus," "Lord Jim" and others.

PAIR ARRESTED ON DELINQUENCY COUNT

Charged with contributing to the delinquency of two minors, a small boy and girl, Pablo Flores, 34, and Natalia Fideroa, 45, today are in the county jail, awaiting a hearing before Justice Kenneth Morrison.

The pair was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Jesse Elliott, late yesterday afternoon, and, according to a complaint filed against them, are alleged to have been living together unlawfully in a house on Fairlawn avenue, Santa Ana, with the children.

They will be arraigned late today, it was said.

"CHARLESTON FOOL"

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 14.—"Kid Dusty," a local "Charleston fool of Youngstown," wants a chance to Charleston his way out of jail. He gave an exhibition in court, but was sent up to serve out a $100 liquor fine. He thinks if he can shake his toes in court again they'll let him out.

IMMIGRANTS "CRASH GATE" IN WEST; STANFORD EXPERT TELLS OF NEW ALIEN MENACE

"Crashing the gate in the west" is the favorite sport of thousands of immigrants, pouring into Uncle Sam's Pacific States.

Over the border on the south countless Mexicans are entering the country; and over the border on the north thousands of Canadians are balancing the west's color chart; and in from the Pacific come countless Filipinos.

Count them all and you find more immigrants in the west than in all of the middle and eastern sections of America.

Which means that the west is the new "melting pot"—and that there are new problems.

Professor Eliot G. Mears, Stanford University, has studied the situation thoroughly, and has written of it for The Register. His first article is published today, on the editorial page.

FILM LEADERS WILL ATTEND WAMPUS BALL

Every studio in filmdom has already bought enough seats in the star circle for the 1926 Wampus frolic and ball to insure 100 per cent attendance of the screen celebrities at the publicity men's annual gala affair. This year, it will be held at the Shrine Civic auditorium, on February 4, with the added interest of being the first public event in Los Angeles' newest and greatest amusement edifice.

The stars are vying with one another to sell their fellow-workers tickets for this event. Headed by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, numerous civic bodies have secured large blocks of seats. Scores of society leaders also have purchased groups of tickets for the many large parties which will be given that evening.

The public is urged to buy its seats at once, according to Ray Perry, who is in charge of ticket sales for the Wampus, at its headquarters in the Regent hotel, Hollywood, because this is the first time in history that every seat for the frolic will be reserved. Even the huge capacity of 6400 will scarcely be sufficient to hold the ever-increasing throngs which come from all over Southern California to attend this annual function, it is declared.

The entire program is being arranged under the personal supervision of Sid Grauman, with daily conferences and rehearsals at Wampus headquarters, 6166 Hollywood boulevard, where the main ticket office is maintained. Every motion picture celebrity in Hollywood will not only be present, but scores of them will participate in what Grauman declares will actually be "the greatest show ever seen, on the largest stage in the world."

U. S. CHAMBER CHIEF TO TALK AT MESA MEET

Colvin B. Brown, of Washington, D. C., chief of the organization bureau of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will speak at the annual meeting of the Orange County Harbor Chamber of Commerce Friday night, January 22, at the Women's clubhouse, Costa Mesa.

His address, entitled "Your Part in the Nation's Work," will give a broader view of the relationship which local activities have to national government and betterment. In it he will show that the several thousand chambers of commerce throughout the country, each striving to build a stronger and better community, are in the nation-wide spread of that effort, helping build a stronger and better nation.

The meeting of the harbor chamber will be preceded by a dinner, at 6:15 p. m., and many prominent citizens of Orange county will be guests. A special program of entertainment will be provided and, in addition to Mr. Brown, there will be other able speakers, well known locally.

The board of directors of the harbor chamber has been increased to 15 members, in view of the great activity promised for the newly opened year.

Dr. Huston will open the meeting and direct the arrangements for the dinner and program to follow. Representatives of the various chambers of commerce will attend in delegations and tables already have been reserved for several communities. J. A. Armistead, of Huntington Beach, has reserved a table for his city's delegation and others will be heard from early. Tickets may be secured at the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce and early application should be made in order that proper accommodations may be provided.

COLLEGE ELECTION CAMPAIGNS BEGUN

Nominations for student body officers of the Santa Ana junior college were made at the assembly yesterday and the campaigns of three candidates for the presidency were launched.

The speeches for the candidates started the election drive, which will be closed with the balloting next Monday. The choice for president will be made from among George Broomell, Valmer Clark and Stewart Ritter.

A touch of partisanship was injected into the campaign when Lyle Cook, in nominating Valmer Clark, freshman student, referred to one candidate as the "fat" man and the other as the "Brotherhood of Bachelors" candidate.

Other students nominated for elective offices were Henrik Van Rensselaer and James Smith, vice president; Thelma Patton and Louane Leech, secretary; Lawrence Minge and Emerson Biggs, treasurer.

New System Of Road Patrol In Effect Here Now

Orange county state motor police are on the roads at all hours of the day and night now, according to a statement made today by Capt. Henry S. Warner, who stated that he had effected a program that kept some of the force guarding the roads throughout the entire 24 hours.

Three shifts of men are used daily now, Captain Warner said. Several officers go to work at 7 a. m., others at 2 p. m. and others at 10 p. m. The men have regular places to work and cover the county effectively, Warner said.

The new plan of patrol will be permanent here, according to Warner.

23 Lots Near Bristol and Chestnut Streets Are Taken As Part Payment

One of the most important deals in North Broadway business property since sale of the property of the Santa Ana Steam Laundry company on the southwest corner of Broadway and Fifth streets to a syndicate of local men, was consummated today with the sale by the Santa Ana Development company of its two-story store and basement property on the west side of North Broadway, between Third and Fourth streets, to Charles Aubrey, local real estate broker. The consideration was reported as approximately $80,000.

The property involved comprises the store rooms at 806-8-10 North Broadway, the Broadway Bowling academy, in the basement at 810 1/2 North Broadway and the Broadway apartments, the latter comprising nine apartments on the second floor.

Sale of the property was announced by Frank Purinton, secretary of the Santa Ana Development company. The latter company is owner of the Grand Central market. The structure sold was erected three years ago and is under lease to E. A. White, realtor.

It was reported that the Santa Ana Development company accepted as part of the consideration, 23 lots in Henry Gruenewald subdivision. The lots are in the vicinity of the corner of Bristol and Chestnut.

A cloak of authority can never hide an ass's ears.

If you have trouble with your furnace give it one of your Christmas cigars. It will probably quit smoking.

As we go to press there is considerable interest being shown in a blazing house located in Swales and McFadden's window. A lesson is to be learned from the tragedy there depicted. The burning house is showering sparks on the roof of a neighboring house. Fortunately, however, the second house is roofed with JOHN'S MANVILLE ASBESTOS SHINGLES. It is in no danger from flying sparks and burning brands.

PLANES NOW STOP AT SAN CLEMENTE

Inauguration of a regular daily airplane service between Los Angeles, San Clemente and San Diego, and great headway on the excavation for the water reservoir, were the principal developments over the week at San Clemente, the Spanish Village, according to the announcement of Ole Hanson, owner and builder of San Clemente. He is represented in Santa Ana by W. A. Proctor, of 218 West Second street.

The airplane service was started last week when a party of newspapermen made the journey from Los Angeles to San Clemente in a giant Douglas plane, one of the largest on the coast. Nine persons were in the party, which embarked from the Los Angeles-San Diego Air Line shortly after 11 a. m. and arrived in San Clemente 45 minutes later. It was the first trip on what is to be a regular daily trip in the future.

Sales at San Clemente continue unabated, according to Mr. Hanson.

BUILDERS' QUERIES ANSWERED

By Southern California Chapter, Associated General Contractors of America

Q—Is it advisable to varnish or shellac a magnesite bath room floor that has been painted with ordinary floor paint?

A—We would advise that you varnish the floor, rather than to apply a shellac coat. The shellac will in time turn a light color. If the present paint coat has peeled off, it is advisable to take a wire brush and dress to a smooth surface, paint again with ordinary paint, then varnish.

Q—I have purchased a home for $5400, paying $65 per month. The monthly payment includes interest at 7 per cent. How long will it take to pay off the indebtedness and how much interest will I have paid in the end?

A—It will require 113.7873 months to complete the payments and you will have paid $1996.17 in interest during the life of the contract.

Q—Can large cracks appearing on the exterior of my plaster house be repaired readily?

A—If the surface of the plaster, with the exception of the large cracks, is hard and in good condition, it would be advisable to apply a coat of stucco. The stucco will close the cracks and give the house the appearance of a new one.

Q—I have been informed that recently there was placed on the market an upright stud for dwelling house construction which was made of steel. Will you please advise me if they can be used successfully and where they may be seen?

A—You have been correctly informed. If you will visit the exhibit in the basement of the Chamber of Commerce building, Twelfth and Broadway, Los Angeles, you can see just how the stud looks when in place and how the metal lath is held.

Q—How long should I retain a portion of the contract price of a home I am building after the contractor has completed the structure?

A—It is the general practice to retain 20 per cent of the contract price for 35 days after the contractor has filed a notice of completion. This is done to protect the owner against any mechanics liens that may be filed against the place. All liens must be filed within 35 days after the notice of completion has been filed. If, however, a notice has not been filed, the time for filing liens is extended to 90 days after the building has been completed.

SEVEN-ROOM HOME SOLD FOR $9000

John H. Neale, real estate broker at 427 North Sycamore, has sold his new seven-room stucco home at 323 Wakeham place to A. B. Everett for a cash consideration of $9000.

Mr. Everett, who has been a resident of the county for 23 years, and his family will occupy the new home about January 20, it was announced by Neale.

Four thousand dollars will be expended by Marshall Harnois, of 1114 West Third street, in the construction of a dwelling and a garage at 414 East Walnut street. The dwelling will have six rooms and will be of stucco. The contract is held by J. Laughlin, of Orange.

George Styling, of 1118 Orange avenue, has secured permits for the erection of a house and a garage at 1115 South Van Ness street. The residence will have six rooms. The owner will direct the construction work. The cost will be $4000.

E. L. Whitaker, of 824 Orange avenue, will build a home and a garage at 815 Lowell street at a cost of approximately $4000.

Financiers Show Faith in Future of Laguna by Buying Big Issue

DRAW SIX PER CENT INTEREST

Tourists Given Copies of Newspapers Containing Story of Unusual Vote

Confidence of the financial world in the future of Laguna Beach was demonstrated yesterday when a contract was signed with the bond house of Freeman, Smith and Camp of Los Angeles, for the purchase at par of the $500,000 water bond issue passed on January 5 by the record vote of 437 to 0. The interstate rate is six per cent. Elmer J. Kennedy, vice president of the firm signed an agreement three weeks before election to purchase the bonds at par if they carried. The contract signed this week makes a good that agreement on the part of the bond. The sale of the bonds at that figure is considered a good deal on the part of the water board and Mr. Kennedy said that the record vote was a good selling point for his house.

The offer to buy the bonds was made as the result of a conversation between Clyde Bishop, of Santa Ana, attorney for the water district, and Mr. Kennedy after the people of Laguna Beach had formed the district by a vote of 359 to 0. The bond man was so enthused at the news that he declared his intention then of making a par bid.

Orange county is to make capital out of the record vote of 437 to 0. Mrs. Winnie L. Vilas, Orange county representative at the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, is telling the story to tourists as an example of the way they go after things in Orange county. Mrs. Vilas distributed a large number of newspapers containing the story.

Thumbs Down!

In the great Roman Coliseum all is still, save for the clang of the Gladiators' swords. It is a terrific struggle between men of equal strength and skill. Finally one thrust, and a wounded fighter lies on the ground, pleading for his life. The victor scans the banked rows for a sign. Everywhere thumbs are down.

But everyone knows about that!

What you do not know, perhaps, is that when a Diamond has battled the torque and grind and bruising of heavy loads, swung rapidly, and is brought in here suffering from abuse! It is thumbs down?

Never thumbs down here. That's why our personal guaranty is easy to do. And, this re-treading business! We use rubber not because it's more expensive, but because it's the only thing to do.

PLANES NOW STOP AT SAN CLEMENTE

son's announcement, and the salesmen during December, the first month San Clemente was on the market, more than doubled their quota of $100,000 in lots sold. Considerable interest has been manifested on the tract in the operations of the giant steam shovel which has dug its way completely below the surface of the hill overlooking San Clemente on which San Clemente reservoir is to stand. This reservoir, in keeping with other San Clemente structures, is to be of Spanish design and is to have a surrounding wall of stucco design which will make it a beautiful structure.

The airplane trip was conducted by Capt. Haakon Hammer, the noted arctic explorer, who was associated with Rold Amundsen on his last polar venture. Capt. Hammer made the trip with the newspapermen and following the flight by addressing the sales gathering at San Clemente. He said that America, although backward in the past about developing commercial aviation, is now making rapid strides and may soon vie with Europe in the number of commercial airports in existence and the number of passengers carried. He predicted that travelers in a very few years will demand air trips whenever possible for their journeys.

The airplane service between Los Angeles and San Diego has been in existence for more than a year without a single mishap to life or property, according to the announcement of new service. San Clemente is the first intermediate stop which has been added, and was chosen, according to J. E. Alexander, the district manager, because the new community is ideally located, as it is exactly midway between Los Angeles and San Diego.

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Jan. 14.—The electrically lighted billboard, which will be used for the Presbyterian church announcements here, was set up this morning in the vacant lot just across the street from the J. Day store, through the courtesy of C. M. Hagen, who owns the lot. The members of the Happy Workers' society earned the billboard by selling 244 bottles of extract. The billboard is expected to do much toward increasing the church attendance here.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Livingston are new arrivals in Westminster, having moved here Monday from Long Beach. Mr. Livingston is employed by the Platt Music company, Long Beach. They are living on Ronda street in the Perrigo tract.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Vrooman, of Kansas, have also moved to Ronda street, having bought their home. Mr. Vrooman works for Charles Power.

Mrs. I. E. Lukens and Mrs. W. L. Burch, of Hansen, were in Westminster, Wednesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Peterson are planning to begin the erection of an eight-room stucco building next to Clark's service station on the Huntington Beach boulevard. Work will begin in the next few days. The store house on the lot where they will build has been torn down and the stones will be used for the foundation of the new building.

O. Cobb and C. Gilbert, of Long Beach, formally opened their barbecue lunch room at the intersection just east of here, last night. Strings of colored lights and a flashlight called attention of motorists to this new eating place. The place will be known as the "Red and Green Barbecue." Both men have had wide experience in this business on the Long Beach pike. The fence in front of the building will be torn down, the ditch filled in, thus making a wide entrance for patrons. The property was leased from Ed Cyr.

Surveyors were busy in Westminster Tuesday, and Wednesday, the county road crew was working with tractor and plough grading Locust street and other thoroughfares in the southern end of Westminster.

A delightful stork shower was given Mrs. R. F. Johnson Tuesday afternoon in her home on Cedar street by a group of intimate friends. Some lovely gifts were received by the happy honoree. The guests also brought with them delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake, which they served after an afternoon spent in social chat.

Gathered at the Johnson home were Mrs. Harry Penhall, Mrs. Clyde Day, Mrs. O. J. Day, Mrs. Francis Penhall, Mrs. Loyal Skinner, Mrs. Raymond Penhall, Mrs. L. R. Bechtel, Mrs. Charles Sigler, Miss Evelyn Whitcomb and Mrs. Addie Hicks, Mrs. Johnson's mother, who is with her in Bakersfield.

Assembly at the grammar school was entirely different from anything the children have ever presented, and visitors and children alike enjoyed the program immensely. Miss I. Payton's room entertained. Songs were the old plantation melodies, "Old Black Joe," "Watermelon Smiling on de Vine," etc.

Mr. Eder has received a second lot of 500 day-old chicks at his new chicken ranch, and is expecting a third lot soon, which will make 1500 chicks he will undertake to raise. Mrs. H. Thomason, of Garden Grove, was a luncheon guest Tuesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Baker.

The Burns home has been wired for electricity. Mr. and Mrs. Phil McClintock visited Mrs. Ida McClintock Sunday in Santa Ana. Mr. and Mrs. J. Valentine are guests in the Sam Marshall home. They are visiting from the eastern states.

Mrs. A. D. Skinner returned Monday to her home here after a visit of two or three weeks in San Diego. Luncheon guests Sunday in the Ralph Rumbold home were Mr. and Mrs. Boy Squires and children, of Wilmington. Dinner guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Prothero and daughter, Mary Jane, of Van Nuys.

Stage and Screen

Buck Jones in a scene from "Gold and the Girl," picture now showing at the West End theater.

WEST COAST-WALKER
The Clark Brothers, horizontal bar experts, head the five-act vaudeville bill which closes today at the West Coast-Walker theater.

They offer one of the best acts of its kind and are certain to meet with hearty approval of any audience. All their work is of the very highest class and combines the elements of thrill with new and novel tricks.

Howard Swart sings and tells stories in a somewhat different manner. He is a versatile entertainer and meets with a welcome reception.

Hibbert and White are clever blackface comedians who can sing well and dance with ability. Their stories and dialogue are witty and bring out rounds of laughter.

Alfred Dunn and Jean Campbell offer a repertoire of classical and popular numbers.

George and Nettie Fosto introduce a comedy act "Hockshop the Detective," which is a scream.

"Heads Up," a cracker jack comedy-melodrama, is the feature picture. Maurice ("Lefty") Flynn carries the leading role and has a fine cast in support. The story deals with the difficulties of a wealthy young man who undertakes a secret mission to Latin America.

Showing tomorrow and Saturday in conjunction with five big acts of vaudeville is Cullen Landis and Dorothy Devore in "The Midnight Flyer."

"The Midnight Flyer" deals intensively with the lives of feud mountain men in West Virginia, their opposition to railroads, and their final absorption into its system. It is spectacular to the extreme, and a deliberate attempt seems to have been made to outdo anything that ever preceded it.

WEST END THEATER
Buck Jones bought a white horse, and right after that he must have seen a red-headed girl, for he certainly does have a lot of luck in the films and out of them. Whether a black and white Boston bull dog is supposed to add anything to the combination or not is not definitely known among the screen "lucky stars," but anyway a dog answering that description features quite prominently in "Gold and the Girl," which opens tonight at the West End theater.

Buck takes his dog pal, All Pal, really needs to make life perfect is plenty to eat and a cot to chase, and he gets both around the Fox lot. But there's a lot more involved in being Buck Jones' dog, especially in a picture like "Gold and the Girl."

Pal makes his first entrance with much spirit by frightening the horse on which the fair heroine is perched, none too securely. That gives Buck a chance to do the rescue act, and then the plot begins. Bandits are involved and gold, as well as desperate flights, thrilling rescues and wild chases over perilous trails. In all these Pal figures and each time he appears he endears himself more and more to the hearts of his feminine fans.

Sour Stomach
"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges sour waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drug store.—Adv.

REMEMBER—ONLY THREE DAYS IN SANTA ANA

Will Santa Ana Continue to Grow?

I AM POSITIVE that she will! Santa Ana has more than doubled in population in the past five years. Her growth was caused, as I see it, by her ideal living conditions and surrounding agricultural opportunities, plus a constant immigration of settlers to California.

It's true that the growth of Santa Ana was slightly retarded during the years 1924 and 1925 notwithstanding the fact that building permits last year exceeded two million dollars. Every thinking person, however, knows that periods of prosperity run in cycles.

1926 is beyond a doubt the opening year of a new and greater period of prosperity for Southern California and for Santa Ana. Every indication points to it. Business throughout the nation and the state is in a healthier condition than it has been in several months. Farming conditions throughout the country are better than in years. Railroads report the greatest immigration to Southern California in the history of the state.

During this era of prosperity Santa Ana is bound to grow at a greater rate than she has in the past. She still has the attributes that caused her past growth, plus factors that she never had before.

Santa Ana is now the king of near sea-shore cities in Southern California. She is prettier, more highly improved and more highly developed along educational and cultural lines than most cities. Her tributary agricultural territory is being more intensely developed each year. But these are not the only reasons for Santa Ana's continued growth.

The biggest single factor contributing to the future prosperity of this city is the great industrial growth which the building of Orange County Harbor will bring. 1926 should see the development of this harbor well under way.

If Santa Ana doubled in population during the past five years, how much will she grow during the next five years?

Watch for my message about the harbor in tomorrow's paper. Also watch for my announcement in Monday's paper which will be the most unusual announcement of its nature ever published in Santa Ana.

Financial and Market News

WALL ST. JOURNAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—With the Thursday bazaar of the redoubtable rate eliminated, stocks exhibited a strong tone in today's session. Professionals continued their efforts to start a general decline, but it became increasingly evident as the day progressed that their attempts were encountering powerful opposition. About the only influence exerted by persistent offerings for short accounts was to bolster up the market's technical position. The sequel to this inside strengthening was an abrupt recovery in the motor stocks in the afternoon trading at the expense of the Bears. Rapid uprushes in Hudson, General Motors and other shares of this group served to restore speculative confidence regarding the general list and the last hour transactions were marked by a less cautious attitude than had ruled for the last several days.

The market closed lower. Closing prices included:

CHICAGO BD. OF TRADE

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Strengthening in the world situation reflected in sharply higher wheat prices at the close of the Chicago Board of Trade today. Gains netted two to three cents while the major portions held without selling against offers and a tendency to alter the trend. The improved undertone had already had a steadying effect on course reports. The higher wheat checked the downturn in corn after fractional recessions. Oats held firm with little change noted.

Cables were the main contributing factor in wheat's rise. A sharply higher close in Liverpool and good gains in Buenos Aires brought in commission houses buying and forced shorts to cover. Export clearance aggregated 200,000 bushels with the seaboard declaring indications point to heavier buying before long because of the reduced figures in Southern Hemisphere products.

Corn traders went slow on the buying side. There was a tendency to take profits due to course reports from Washington from that farming interests were unable to agree upon a fixed policy for disposition of the surplus. Oats were quiet.

Strong hog markets and good export demand boosted provisions.

DECLARES LIFE BUDGET BRINGS HAPPY RELEASE

Budgeting by an individual of his life to include a proper appor-tionment of his time to his fam-ily, to his business and to service to his community brings as its reward the greatest happiness to the individual, according to decla-rations by E. B. Sprague, vice president of the First National bank in addressing the Kiwanis club yesterday on the subject of budgeting.

The program was one developed for the club's monthly educational meetin, John W. Estes Jr., being chairman of the committee and program yesterday. The chairman himself added interesting com-ments on education, by declar-ing that "budgeting and thrift appeal to most of us, but there is more in life than the ac-tual accumulation of dollars, as useful as they are."

Pointing out that it is the duty of each individual to do the very best he can for himself, for his family and for his community, he said that "it is a waste for a man to use his life in the lower things of life rather than to de-vote it to the higher and better things."

POLY HOOPSTERS READY FOR LONG BEACH

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

When C. C. Pyle saw "Red" Grange prancing on the grid fields of glory two years ago, he had a dream. In the dream he saw contracts, with gold written all over them, and movie sets, all gilded and glorious and renumerable.

It was Pyle's dream of professionalism, and he took the red-headed phenomenon under his wing, his very business-like wing, to make that dream come true.

Now, oh, how the money rolls!

Pyle was the owner of a small movie in Champaign, Ill., when he first set eyes on Grange. It is said that on that occasion he picked up a pencil at once and began to figure and to dream.

Did he put down $100,000 or $200,000, or what? Well, whatever it was, that's what they are guessing now will be his profit from the management of Grange this year.

Spurred $60,000

Two years ago Grange began attracting attention on the white-lined fields of combat. That year some one came around with a $60,000 contract for the young man to sign. Grange went to Pyle. Pyle felt like Caesar.

"Wait," said the movie magnate of Champaign, Ill.

So Red, who had come to trust Pyle's advice and respect his judgment through their long chats together, just sat back and waited.

It was hard sometimes to keep Grange waiting, Pyle says, and only by dint of the big figures to come could Red's anxiety be restrained. But the big frozen water peddler of Wheaton, Ill., did wait, until Pyle saw the whites of their eyes. Then they began firing, with Pyle getting the range, and a healthy range it was, too.

Penn Game Turned Trick

"The inevitable came, of course," Pyle says. "Red waited and while he waited he kept getting better all the time. This last season was his greatest. After the Penn game our fortune was made. It was time to begin talking turkey. So we talked."

It was the Penn game in which the big flaming 77 on Grange's back streaked up and down the field like an artist's brush across a canvas background, every run a thrill to the thousands who sat and watched the gridiron game of the ages.

Every stroke of that master brush across the gray field of battle was a thrill for Illinois and for the solidly packed Illinois rooters in the stands. It was a thrill for the little group of newspaper men who sat marveling that such things had come to pass.

But the greatest thrill came to C. C. Pyle, movie "magnate" of Champaign, Ill., who sat chewing a pencil and watching a dream come true.

HISTORY MAKING HAYMAKERS; WHEN FITZ STOPPED CORBETT

(Haymakers That Made History is the title of an absorbingly interesting series that Joe Williams, famous fight authority, has written for The Register. It deals with the 16 most memorable knockout contests in ring annals.)

L. A. ACCORDS 'RED' WELCOME OF PRESIDENT

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14.—With the blare and ballyhoo usually accorded only to presidents, Los Angeles enthusiasts gave a tremendous welcome today to Wheaton's foremost citizen, Mr. Harold Grange.

A brass band, a corteo of cameramen, and hundreds of football fans greeted the gridiron idol and his Chicago Bears when they arrived on the Sunset Limited this morning. The greeters included scores of former Illinois residents, who will cheer for Grange and his team-mates in their football game here Saturday with the Los Angeles All-Stars, captained by George Wilson, All-American half-back.

Led by "Red," his father, and his brother, Garland, the visitors paraded through downtown streets, a squad of mounted policemen leading the way through dense throngs of fans. Hundreds of Grange worshippers trailed in the procession, and bystanders along the line of march sent up cheer after cheer.

At his hotel, Grange was besieged by film producers. The gridiron king admitted he might sign another movie contract before he leaves California.

The Bears were taken to the Los Angeles Coliseum later for a workout. They will have a final practice drill tomorrow.

Local fans expect a thrilling battle Saturday between the Bears and the Pacific Coast team, headed by Wilson. The Washington giant covered himself with glory in the Alabama-Washington game at Pasadena, and next to Grange he is the chief box-office attraction.

A record crowd of at least 80,000 will pay to watch Grange perform, according to the advance ticket sale. Promoters said it might be necessary to install 10,000 extra seats in the big Los Angeles stadium to accommodate the overflow.

By JOE WILLIAMS

Probably no single punch has ever been designed and executed that has changed the aspect of more ring battles than the famed "solar plexus" blow with which Bob Fitzsimmons knocked out Jim Corbett for the heavyweight championship at Carson City, Nev., March 17, 1897.

The wallop, developed after many months of painstaking practice by "Ruby Robert" for the sole purpose of putting the champion on the canvas, has come down through the years, leaving its trail of wrecked hopes and vanished titles. As a history-making sleep-producer, the "solar plexus punch" has never had an equal.

For years Dan Hickey, Bob's manager, has been drilling him in the mysteries of a new body blow. Hickey was familiar with Corbett's great left hand. When the champion delivered this punch he turned his body slightly to add to the leverage. For a fraction of a second his body was open for a left. Hour after hour Hickey used Corbett's punch on Bob, the Australian meeting it by shifting, pulling his right side back and driving in his left. It was the one punch Bob meant to use to take the title from Corbett.

Begin Cautiously

The fight began cautiously. Corbett, the master boxer, was reaching with jabs to the nose and mouth. Once, in the sixth, Fitz slipped to his knees and took the count of nine while he cleared his nose and mouth of blood. But he was not seriously hurt. Corbett knew it and was cautious in his approach.

They are still debating whether Fitzsimmons was really groggy or merely shamming when he sprawled limply on his seat at the end of the round. The champion must have thought his distress real. He chatted confidently with his hand-ers.

The bell rang and Bob leaped from his seat as if shot from a gun, caught Corbett before he had risen from his seat and forced him along the ropes. Fitz had just begun to fight.

Corbett, the champion, the greatest boxer the ring had known, called upon all his skill. He uppercuted and Bob pulled his head back laughing and let the blows die away in the empty air above. He had Corbett's measure in every punch the champion started. And Gentleman Jim was weakening under the pace.

The end came in the fourteenth. Bob deliberately worked Corbett in-

COLLEGE CAGE TEAM DEFEATS TUSTIN PREPS

The Santa Ana junior college basketball squad scored a 14 to 8 victory over the Tustin high school quintette at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium here last night.

The win was not as decisive as was expected of the collegians. Coach Graham Harris, college mentor, tried numerous combinations and the experiments tended to slow up his attack.

Both teams battled on even terms during the first half. At the close of the period the score was tied at 8 and 8. In the last stanza, the collegians began hitting on "all fours" and forged ahead while the Tustin prep five was held scoreless.

The lineup:

S.A.J.C.	Tustin
Labrucherie(4)	F..... Rust
McLane	.....F..... (3)Thiery
Webber(4)	.....C..... Farrar
Clayes(2)	.....G..... Miller

LOCAL "Y" FIVE LOSE BUT SHOW REAL CLASS

Although defeated, the Santa Ana Y.M.C.A. basketball team exhibited the fastest playing they have shown this year when they lost to the Orange Athletic club by a 30 to 20 score on the city "Y" floor last night.

The game was a practice match, preliminary to the "Y" league contest that will be played with San Diego, conference leaders, here Saturday night.

Louraine Bove, "Y" guard, played an outstanding game last night both on offense and defense. He was high point man for Coach R. R. Russell's squad. Captain Frank Wallace, forward for the Orange outfit, was largely responsible for the victory of the visitors.

The lineup:

S. A. "Y"	Orange
Cox(3)	.....F..... (8)Batterman
Kennedy(4)	.....F..... (12)Wallace
Anderson(4)	.....C..... (6)Price
Sylvester(2)	.....G..... (3)Christenson to a corner, coolly making arrangements to put over the stomach punch he had already announced to newspaper men he would use to end the fight.

Corbett, pressed against the ropes, started a left swing. Fitz, fighting in his peculiar style, with feet well forward and shoulders pulled back, that made him appear farther away than he really was, rolled his head to one side and the body rippled harmlessly by his ear. His left hand already poised, Fitz shifted his left foot forward and ripped his fist squarely into Corbett's stomach. Without changing his position he swung the left with lightning-like speed to the champion's jaw.

Corbett's mouth flew open, he doubled forward, sank to his knees and slowly slumped forward on his face. He was not unconscious. Reaching for the ropes, he tried to pull himself up, but his left hung limp as sea-weed, seemingly paralyzed. He fell back again and was counted out by Referee George Siler.

In his dressing room a little later Corbett was examined by a physician. When the doctor came out he was asked for a description of the blow.

"It was a punch to the solar plexus," said the doctor.

And thus was born, as most everyone knows, the celebrated "solar plexus punch."

LOS ANGELES.—The University of Southern California basketball squad leaves here late today with Berkeley for their destination. The Trojan quintette will start the conference season against the California Bears Friday and Saturday.

LATHROP CAGE SQUAD WINNER OVER MISSIONS

BY NEWELL VANDERMAST

San Juan Capistrano high school's basketball team yesterday was defeated by the Julia C. Lathrop junior high school squad, 16 to 8. Coach Pat Bryan's outfit failed to locate the hoop from close in shots or long follow up attempts. Lineup:

Capistrano	.....F..... (5)Crumrine
Olivars(4)	.....F..... (3)Smith
Rios(2)	.....C..... (4)Tucker
Thomas(1)	.....G..... (1)Spencer

Landell	.....G..... (1)Keele
Substitutions:	Capistrano—Cal-
lorn and Lobo; Lathrop—Siddoway
(2) for Smith; Allen, Peters, Har-	shorn, Abbott and White.

A little misunderstanding in dates also brought the Huntington Beach Class "B" to Lathrop. Being rather up against it with two larger teams against him, Coach Bryan started his next best against Huntington Beach. They performed well, winning 16 to 12.

The lineup:

Hunt. Beach	Lathrop

Watson(8)	.....F..... (8)Siddoway

Olive Courtiers Defeat Placentia

Olive's grammar school quintette won its first league game Wednesday when it defeated the fast Placentia cagers, 19 to 14, at Placentia.

Rice and Squires of Olive played excellently, while Herrera and Burns for Placentia furnished the Olive guards plenty of work.

Next Wednesday Olive meets Brea at Olive and a hard game is promised.

The lineup:

Placentia	Olive
Johnson	.....F..... Rice
Each	.....F..... Shell
Burns	.....C..... Mendoza
Hanson	.....G..... Squires
Hierera	.....G..... Bugo..

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—In a new act as a fancy salesman, with all the appropriate trimmings, Georges Carpentier began looking over the American market today.

As a standard staple line he has himself to offer and as a novelty he is going to push Senor Paulino, the Basque wood chopper, tagged in the Frenchman's catalogue as the next heavyweight champion.

Carpentier always has been able to get better than peak prices for himself, but if he is able to sell the wood chopper to any promoter for any price he could get away with a line of hobsbreds in Egypt.

Paulino, attached to the firm of Descamps and Carpentier, Inc., is probably one of the world's worst fighters unless he has developed in the two years more than any fighter in history. They don't develop them fast enough in Europe to turn a raw novice into a world's cham-

CY YOUNG TOPS PITCHERS OF ALL TIME IN MANY RECORDS

By BILLY EVANS

The late Christy Mathewson was a remarkable pitcher. Walter Johnson is easily the most famous of the modern crop of pitchers. Yet the record of Cy Young is dotted with many extraordinary feats of pitching that will probably never be equaled, even by the great Johnson.

Young has over 500 major league victories to his credit. Johnson is the only pitcher with a chance to equal it and he is still about 100 games away.

He pitched two no-hit games. One in 1904 against the Philadelphia Athletics, the other against the New York Americans in 1903. In the Philadelphia no-hit affair not a player reached first base.

On June 24, 1902, pitching for Cleveland against St. Louis, he held the Browns to a 16-inning 3-3 tie, allowing only five hits.

Waddell Beat Him

The great Rube Waddell beat him in a memorable 20-inning game on July 4, 1905. The score was 4-2. Waddell won with Philadelphia at the time, Young with the Boston Red Sox.

In the season of 1904, pitching for the Red Sox, he beat Ed Killian, working for Detroit, 1-0, in 15 innings.

During five seasons of his career Young won 30 or more games, his best mark being 36 in 1902, when he was a member of the Cleveland club, then in the National league.

In his six seasons of his remarkable major league record he won 25 or more games; in four, 20 or more games.

Making 15 years of big league pitching in which he won from 20 to 36 games annually.

Star pitchers are easy to umpire for. There never were three fairer men to call balls and strikes for than Cy, Christy and Walter.

Well do I recall an incident that came up in an important game at Boston some 15 years back and how Young got me out of an embarrassing situation.

Tigers, Boston Rivals

In those days Detroit and Boston were bitter rivals. With the bases filled and Sam Crawford, the Babe Ruth of those days, up, I erred on a perfect strike that would have retired the side, instead of making the count three and two.

Lou Criger, catching Young, made a strenuous protest. I knew that I had missed it but remained silent while Criger got the venom out of his system. Before he finished Young walked up to the plate and yelled at Criger:

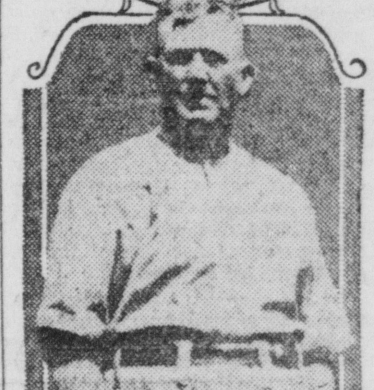

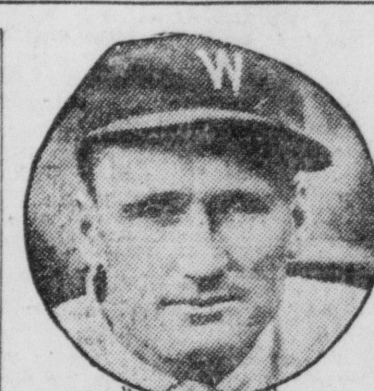

"We can't get the side out with conversation; give me the ball; I think Evans was right, the ball was too low for a strike." That silenced Criger.

The next pitch was right through the heart of the plate. Crawford hit a terrific drive to deep center that looked good for a home run. Imagine my feeling of satisfaction when the late Chick Stahl made one of the greatest running one-handed catches I have ever seen.

As Cy Young walked past me he smugly remarked:

"Bill, I am not so good I can spot batters like Sam Crawford an extra strike."

That was the only way he made it known to me that he thought I had missed one, and I certainly had.

TOP TO BOTTOM: WALTER JOHNSON, CY YOUNG AND CHRISTY MATHEWSON.

COAST LEAGUE OPENER TO BE PLAYED FRIDAY

Kidman - Winterburn Machine Upsets Orange De Molays in Practice Fray

Coast Preparatory league rivalries that increased football interest 50 per cent during the past season will be renewed tomorrow when the eight schools in the Southland's fastest interscholastic organization officially begin their 1926 basketball campaign.

Santa Ana makes its first bid for reckoning in the championship class at Long Beach, meeting the undefeated Jackrabbit quintette, league titleholders, in the Long Beach high school gymnasium about 4 p. m. A contest between the Class C (110-pound) aggregations of the same schools will serve as a curtain-raiser. The Class B (130-pound) squads of Santa Ana and Long Beach were to battle it out at the American Legion clubrooms here this afternoon.

Coach "Chuck" Winterburn of Santa Ana is one of the Southern California footballers who will try to stop "Red" Grange Saturday and he has had to practice daily with the Los Angeles Tigers all this week. Lyman Kidman, the "miracle coach" of the 1925 basketball turnout, has charge of the team this week. His men have played two practice contests and emerged victorious in both so they are given just an outside chance to jump up and snipe the powerful Jackrabbit combination which has won seven practice games already. A victory over the Southern Branch freshmen was the last for the Seasideers.

Kidman hasn't announced his starting lineup but it is probable he will send Ferris Edgar and Harry Rodemacher in at forwards, Captain Chester Siegel to center and Nylan Hurd and "Tex" Rister to guards.

In the last practice game before the Long Beach fray, the Polytechs defeated the Orange DeMolay team at Orange yesterday. The score was 18 to 10.

Ferris Edgar, little Santa Ana forward, was high point player with 8 counters. It took half the game for the locals to get their offensive under way but they showed considerable ability during the last period when they ran up 13 points.

A well oiled machine in the making was evidenced. Besides showing a threatening offensive attack, the team was strong on defense with Rister and White forming the best combination at guards.

The lineup:

Santa Ana	Pos.	Orange
Edgar (8)	.....F.....	(3) Crawford
Walker (2)	.....F.....	(2) Durrell
Siegel (6)	.....C.....	Brickell
Hurd	.....G.....	Robinson
Rister	.....G.....	Thompson

Parkridge Will Stage Big Golf Tourney In 1926

The Parkridge Country club, near Corona, next year will stage an open golf tournament with cash prizes of $5000, according to an announcement made by Dan Gilkey, of Long Beach, organizer of the club, to a group of Southern California newspapermen and women who were his dinner guests at the club last night.

The tournament will be conducted after the second annual open tournament scheduled for Los Angeles next season as a recognition of the $10,000 tournament concluded there Sunday.

Bobbed Hair

How to Keep it Thick
Healthy, Vigorous

The constant curling and waving demanded by modern style in hair dress, slowly burns the color, lustrous and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

A 55-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty-cream acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

The TANGLE

Principals in The Triangle are Leslie Prescott, beautiful and wealthy wife of John Alden Prescott, whose destiny has been peculiarly affected by the famous pearls collected for her by Karl Whitney who later married her sister Alice. The suicide of the sister was one of the dire events leading to Leslie's determination to dispose of the jewels. John Alden Prescott is an admirer of all women and his love for Paula Perier antedated his marriage to Leslie.

Leslie adopted Paula's child, giving it its father's name of John Alden Prescott Jr. Paula subsequently became a famous and beautiful motion picture star.

From the Pittsburgh Sun:

When this became known to her friends a short time ago, Miss Perier bought those that had belonged always to Mrs. Prescott and situated that the money she paid for them should go to John Alden Prescott, Junior, to whom she has taken a great fancy since she has been in town.

Mr. Whitney then asked his sister-in-law to place his purchase money in trust for his grandson, Karl Sydney Prescott. As soon as Mr. Whitney and Miss Perier knew that their requests would be granted, there began a friendly rivalry between them to determine which would pay, not the least, but the most for his part of the jewels, although no one in the family will tell what Mr. Whitney or Miss Perier paid for the most magnificent collection of pearls in America. It is known that the deed of trust executed by Mrs. Prescott a day or two ago, placed each of her boys among the wealthy young people of Pittsburgh.

AN Society is aware with curiosity and it is expected that the Orthopedic Hospital will make much more than is necessary for their new building and improvement operation.

Night Letter from Paula Perier to Sally Authen

Have just seen the story in the Pittsburgh Sun. I think it's very terrible. Who do you suppose could have told that I had asked that the money I paid for Leslie Prescott's pearls should be given to her oldest son? Would deny it if possible but I am afraid dental would only stir up more curiosity. I hope that I will not have as much annoyance and grief when I possess these pearls as Leslie had. I am almost afraid that something is going to happen to me and then I say that I will not be so superstitious.

I have consented to appear at the bazaar three afternoons and evenings. I am glad they did not ask me to wear my pearls. Although it is much against my approval, the director of "Hot Steel," for advertising purposes, has asked me to wear those pearls in the sequence which will be taken at the mill. I can't make it seem right that any woman, even a motion picture actress, would wear a million dollars worth of jewels when she walks through a steel mill.

However, I expect I shall have to do it, for in the bright lexicon of the cinema, there is no such word as "No." Everybody has to be a "Yes" man or a "Yes" woman.

PAULA.

The Old Woodpile

by HARRY LEE
Reprinted, by permission, from February "Smart Set"

IN THE back yard under the maple tree, That's where the woodpile used to be, The rickety saw-buck, the battered edge, The second-best ax, with the blunted edge— You'd spit on your hands, and saw and saw— When your dad was around! His word was law!

Dad, maybe, drove for the mail to town. Then a window opened and Maw looked down— And you on the saw-buck, moppin' your head, Sayin' by jiminy, wisht you was dead!

And then Maw smiled and told you tales Of young Abe Lincoln, a-splittin' rails. But you reckoned you wouldn't be President. If you chopped for a lifetime! Then Maw went— Hollerin' back, "fore you could begin: "I'm bakin' a puddin' with raisins in!"

"Twas dusk and the crickets callin', when Dad drove up the lane from town again; The big box back of the stove overflowed With the wood you'd chopped! The fire glowed! And supper was ready! You took your place, Between the two, and your dad said grace; You gulped your vittles, so you could begin Eatin' the puddin' with raisins in!

IF YOU could go back to the maple tree, Back where the woodpile used to be, Wouldn't you make the old chips fly? Wouldn't you pile the wood-box high? What would you do when your dad said grace And you saw the light on your Mother's face— If you were offered one golden day, Out of your boyhood—what would you say?

Southland Test of Fashion

By BETSY SCHUYLER
NEA Service Writer.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 14.—The stage of Palm Beach is now set and the spectators are waiting for the social try-outs.

Within the next two months we shall know which of the newest applicants for social honors are ready for stardom, which ones can be allowed to do speaking parts, and which ones can be depended on only for the chorus work and general atmosphere.

Palm Beach is undoubtedly queen of the winter resorts and the try-out town of the country socially. Those who make the grade here can go back home triumphant even if they have not been top-notchers before.

She who can carry off the honors as the best dressed woman at Palm Beach, holds the national championship and could compete in an international meet.

Socially, Palm Beach, after the manner of ancient Gaul, is divided into three parts.

In the top layer are the recognized social leaders of the country, thoroughly established and graduated. Below them are the climbers. Many of them will crash the gates this season, become one with the top layer, before the season is over.

In the third and lower class are the newly rich who must start the upward climb, and the spenders and in their homes.

The two upper classes and the two lower ones meet, but the upper and lower form the East and West combination that refuses to mix.

Entertain to Arrive

The way to arrive here socially is to entertain magnificently. Good dinner and—let us whisper it—good champagne, work wonders.

In a way, social life here is as routine as an office job. There is a time for everything and everyone does the same things at the same time.

The first activity of the day is the dip in the ocean—from 11 until one o'clock. Then comes luncheon at one of the smart clubs. The afternoon may be devoted to bridge, golf, tennis or shopping, as you will. Then comes dancing at the Coconut Grove for the younger set, and tea. This is likewise the cocktail hour in the homes. A late dinner and dancing complete the program. Hostesses, backgrounds and costume change, but the routine is established.

Wardrobe Important

Besides becoming famous as a hostess, it is well to become known for an extensive and perfectly selected wardrobe. To get any recognition as a dresser here, where the best dressed women of the country congregate, is no easy assignment. Princess Ghika, a newcomer this season, is gaining a reputation, not for her clothes, which are very simple, but for her marvelous collection of antique jewels. She glories ever her tailored costumes by marvelous bracelets of gorgeous workmanship and finger rings of unusual size which she usually wears on her middle finger.

The Countess Salm, formerly Millicent Rogers, is seldom seen, she is so busy avoiding reporters and photographers, but occasionally one gets a glimpse of her in her big red car and she is always perfectly tourists who have plenty of money, and no social aspirations, and come to Palm Beach for a good time. If Mrs. Stotesbury or Mrs. Vanderbilt are unconscious of their presence, it will not bother them.

This latter class are responsible for many of the noisy parties and falling into fountains and for much of the so-called wild life in public places. The established ones make merry at the fashionable clubs or fectly costumed. She was extremely smart the other day in a tan coat band with brown and a tiny hat to match. She has a most distinctive hair cut, very boyish and short in the back, but intriguingly waved in the front.

Mary Brown Warburton, daughter of Major Marcey H. Warburton who has one of the most beautiful homes in Palm Beach, and entertains lavishly, is seen almost daily in her particular semi-tailored style.

Wool and Jersey I greatly admired a costume of blue wool with hat to match, that was just the color of a summer sky, and bound with ribbon of the same shade. On both her wrists were lovely jeweled bracelets.

The very decorative Emily Peterson with her blonde hair carefully waved, and her slightly better manner is very much in evidence. I saw her in a tan dress, considerably longer than most of the smart set are wearing, and a tiny brown hat that could not possibly have been smaller or more close fitting.

Quite the smartest coat I have seen was worn by Mrs. Ralph Isham, of tan kasha with a wide band of orange forming the front. She was wearing the Gigolo hat that is extremely popular here.

Typical of what you see on the golf course is the knitted costume worn by Mona Wainwright, in the photograph. There is a jumper of knitted wool with block patterns that are repeated on the border of the skirt. Another good costume for the golf course is seen on Mrs. Lester Brion of New York. A jumper of blue ribbed silk, bound with plain silk worn with a flannel skirt of exactly the same shade. The wools and jerseys have an excellent excuse for being, because, despite the sunshine there are many chilly when silk is less comfortable than wool.

Mrs. Mona Wainwright

exactly what a revolution was, but then that didn't matter. It must be something unpleasant from the way the Fairy Queen spoke, and it must be stopped at once.

"Is my washing finished yet?" asked Mister Havalook's voice at that very minute down the laundry stairs.

"I can't find any starch," called Nancy.

"Here's a box of corn starch. Will that do?" asked Mister Havalook.

"I suppose so," called Nancy.

"Nick, you run and get it."

At that minute Black Dinah came waddling in, her arms akimbo and a handkerchief on her head, tied in two long ends that stuck up like rabbit ears.

"Who all's talkin' 'bout starchin'?" she remarked. "Heah Ah came to Hidy Go Land to get out o' wokin', but Ah guess Ah can't. Ah'll starch dem close. Where's de starch and where's de kettle?"

Menus for the Family

By SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Grapes, cereal, thin cream, buckwheat pancakes, country sausage, crisp bran bread toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Cream of carrot soup, croutons, open cottage cheese and celery sandwiches, banana pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—New England boiled dinner, head lettuce salad, Boston brown bread, apple roll, milk, coffee.

So many vegetables are included in the "boiled dinner" that an extra vegetable is not planned. The salad is a very simple affair while the dessert is rather hearty.

The family who is not physically busy during the morning hours will not want the sausage and buckwheat cakes suggested for breakfast but the boy or girl who will be out of doors will find the meal most satisfying.

Banana Pudding

Six bananas, 3-4 cup sugar, 1-2 cup boiling water, 1-2 cup seeded and chopped raisins, 1-3 cup blanched and shredded almonds, 1 lemon, few grains salt.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

GLASSWARE

Rinse glassware in hot water containing several teaspoonfuls of household ammonia, to produce a high polish. Dry it with a soft cheesecloth towel.

JEWELRY

Jewelry should be dried in jeweler's sawdust, after cleaning. The sawdust may be bought in boxes from jewelers.

WHOLE CLOVE

Many hostesses add a whole clove and a slice of lemon to a cup of tea, to improve the flavor.

SANDWICHES

Delicious afternoon tea sandwiches are made of cream cheese and nuts on brown bread.

SIFT FIRST

Sift flour before measuring it. Otherwise it will be too tightly packed and the amount used will be too much for the recipe.

THUMB TACKS

Small, white-headed thumb tacks are now available for the laying of kitchen oilcloth.

FASHION HINTS

GLOVES

Gloves become more ornate, with stitched cuffs and cutouts and embroideries and beads. Every color in the rainbow may be bought in the up-to-date shops.

PINK CHIFFON

Pale pink, shell and flesh color are being used widely for evening dresses, often in conjunction with pearl and rhinestone beads.

WOODEN BEADS

Wooden beads in long heavy strands are being worn with filmy afternoon dresses.

BUSTLES

An occasional bustle is seen among the frocks from Paris. A huge taffeta bow gave the bustle effect in a dancing dress for the sub-deb.

Madame Elaine, Beauty Specialist, Gives Remarkable Secrets used by French Women to Keep Young, Beautiful and Slender.

HOW TO GET A CLEAR COMPLEXION—Every morning drink a glass of hot water, every evening take one or two pellets of Veritables French Lavative. It will clear your system from all impurities and your complexion will soon respond. Keep away from red meats it is deadly for the complexion—eat vegetables and salads.

HOW TO SAFELY LOSE 4 OR 5 POUNDS A WEEK—

Here is a formula of a well-known French Scientist which now has been put up into a small convenient tablet. It is called SAN-GRINA and nearly every French woman keeps a box of these tablets handy because it takes off fat quickly and safely—it seldom reduces one of less than 4 or 5 pounds a week. I personally know of women who have lost as much as 50, 60 or 75 pounds of flabby, ugly FAT with SAN-GRINA. I used it myself and lost over 20 pounds—recommend it because it is absolutely harmless and the most efficacious reducer I know of. Dr. Rudolph, former health commissioner, made a thorough investigation of it and advises it to FAT people as a safe and harmless way to get slender. It is sold at all good drug stores, with money back guarantee, so you might try it and if you are not pleased it will not cost you a penny and it can't hurt you.

HOW TO GET RID OF DISAGREEABLE BODY ODORS AND PERSPIRATION—

Another French product extensively used by beautiful Parisiennes has lately been introduced in America under the name of BOX ODOR—it does away with unpleasant body odors and it is indispensable for women of all certain to use it—comes in a soft delightful powder—All one needs to do is to shake it under arm-pits, feet, etc. of several women who are now using this remarkable product instead of all other deodorants, because it is so pleasant and easy. It can be had, I think from any good drug or department store.

HOW TO KEEP SLENDER AND AT THE SAME TIME RELIEVE STOMACH TROUBLES AND INDIGESTION—

If you don't like to take anything internal there is now a new discovery to make

FAT people thin. Science says that today you can cheer yourself into slenderness. In our days of progress nothing is surprising but can you imagine how pleasant to only have to chew a refreshing Gum and at the same time know that your figure is getting more and more SILPH-LIKE? In New York it is the latest fad and all those beautiful chorus girls, actresses and models that everyone admires are chewing SILPH and say that they can eat all they want and still keep slender. A couple of weeks ago a man wrote in to me that he had relieved himself entirely from indigestion from which he had suffered for years, by simply chewing two pieces of SILPH Gum a day. Be sure you get SILPH as I have been told there are two or three imitations on the market. All reliable druggists carry SILPH, but if you cannot get it write direct to the manufacturers, 9 West 60th Street, New York City. It sells for 50 cents a box.

HOW TO REMOVE WRINKLES—

Here is an interesting story—Some time ago I advised Mrs. A. S. F. to remove her double chin with DR. FOLTS SOAP, which is the only external way I ever recommend for double chin, big legs, big arms, etc. She wrote me and told me that not only had she entirely removed her double chin but that she had used it on her face and said, that to remove wrinkles nothing equalled DR. FOLTS SOAP. Since then I advised it to several women who have obtained extraordinary results in giving their face a smooth, healthy look—Of course, DR. FOLTS SOAP is especially recommended to slenderize arms—legs—ankles, but from what I have heard it is also wonderful to remove wrinkles—Try it—A cake only costs 50 cents. All you need to do is make a good lather with this soap, apply where you want to remove fat or wrinkles then wash off with cold water.

Anyone wishing for Beauty Advice can write to Madame Elaine's Dept., 1841 B'dway, New York City, and she will be glad to mail free literature on any of the products she recommends, which can be purchased from leading drug or dept. stores.

Nothing Quite Takes the Place of a Home

Particularly if that home is paid for. The next best thing is a home being paid for, and we offer the simplest method of doing this. Our monthly payment plan of reducing a loan has been in successful operation for the past 32 years and through our help many of our neighbors have paid for their homes who might otherwise still be renewing their mortgages. There are several distinct advantages in our loans—you have the choice of several different payments, you know just how many installments will be required to mature the loan, you are not bothered with making renewals because papers are written for the full time, and you have repayment privileges. Before renewing your mortgage, ask us about our loan plan.

Paderewski and Advertising!

"I practice every day," says Paderewski, the piano master. "If I fail to practice one day, I myself can notice the effect upon my playing; if I neglect the piano two days, the critics notice it; if I don't practice for three days the public notices it."

Doesn't this same thought apply to consistency in advertising?

Of course it does!

APPROVE PLAN OF WORK FOR BOULDER DAM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Secretary of the Interior Work's recommendation for a $125,000,000 bond issue for construction of a dam at Boulder canyon, in the Colorado river, submitted to the senate irrigation and reclamation committee, has been enthusiastically approved by W. B. Matthews, counsel for the Los Angeles bureau of light and power.

"Secretary Work's report on the Colorado river project is one of the most important documents of its kind ever issued from the interior department," said Matthews.

"In amount of money to be expended, this project, as favored by Work, would be the largest ever undertaken by the interior department. The dam, with a height of 550 feet, will be the highest in the world. However, the magnitude and importance of this project are not to be measured alone or even mainly by its cost and size. Its vital relation to the welfare and development of the whole southwest is the chief consideration in appraising its worth and significance.

Vast Benefit From Project

"It will mean the control and regulation of the Colorado river in the interest of flood protection, reclamation, municipal water supply and the generation of power. These factors are of prime importance to southwestern Arizona, Imperial and Coachella valleys, Southern California and the cities of the coastal plain.

"The secretary's plan for financing this development merely calls for use of the government's credit in providing the necessary funds. It is contemplated that the government in fact will be out nothing and that the revenues from power and water, and particularly the former, will make prompt and adequate provision for paying both principal and interest on the bonds and all operating expenses.

"While the secretary's plan is along different lines than those heretofore proposed by the bill, in view of the fact that it undoubtedly represents the ideas of the president and the entire administration, the greatest measure of assurance is afforded that the legislation has taken a big advance step toward final passage," Matthews said.

Will Consider Bill Report

Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, will call a meeting next week of the senate irrigation and reclamation committee, of which he is chairman, to consider a report on the bill and take up recommendations of Work for a bond issue of $125,000,000 for the building of the dam.

McNary, although an administration supporter, does not approve of the Swing-Johnson measure.

Senator Johnson, Republican, California, joint author of the Swing-Johnson bill, was elated by the report of Secretary Work. He issued a statement hailing it as "a fruition of the fight in which the people of Southern California have been struggling for years."

He was especially pleased that the report represented the views of not only Secretary Work, but also those of the administration, and he expressed appreciation for the "sympathetic and intelligent manner in which the secretary of the interior and the secretary of commerce had dealt with the matter."

He praised Representative Phil D. Swing for his work in the enterprise.

"At last we are on the way to realization of the greatest constructive work of this generation," Johnson said. "The most important element essential to success—the government—has testified its approval."

IRISH GIRLS SHOW MORE ENTERPRISE

DUBLIN, Jan. 14.—A new spirit of enterprise and self reliance is being developed by the Irish girls, who heretofore have been noted mostly for their charm and beauty.

Years ago, middle-class Irish girls devoted most of their time to home affairs and the question of marriage to some youth of their native place. Today their outlook is broader, changed very largely by the upheaval in Irish life and politics of the past years.

The political movement, which led through the Irish rebellion to the establishment of the Free State, taught the thoughtful Irish girls that there was something more to do than stay at home and get married. Many have made remarkable successes in drama and comedy on the stage, thereby creating a new race of actresses.

With Dublin university open to women students came the opportunity to those of a studious nature, who have since won scholarships and prizes which qualified them for the learned professions. Many have migrated to other countries to increase their knowledge.

CAPTURE BIG SEA TURTLE OFF PIER

NEWPORT BEACH, Jan. 14.—A gigantic sea turtle, the first ever seen in local waters, was captured off the pier here yesterday by Louis Louder, local fisherman.

The turtle is nearly four feet from one end of its shell to the other. The turtle's tail is more than a foot in length and as large as a man's arm, while his head is nearly as large as a sea's head. It is estimated that the turtle will weigh better than 150 pounds.

A harness of strong ropes was made yesterday afternoon and boys of the town had a great time driving the turtle about in the surf. The animal has large flippers and when it exerted itself, a 15-year-old boy had a hard job to hold it.

Estimates of the amount of soup that the turtle would make have not been made by the fishermen. It is expected that the turtle will be kept here for some time as a curiosity.

UNIQUE WHALE HARPON FOUND BY FISHERMAN

NEWPORT BEACH, Jan. 14.—A special whale harpoon, made in Russia and of a very unique design, has just arrived in this city. The harpoon is being displayed at the fishing tackle store of Hugh McMillan. It was found at San Clemente island recently by Harry Johnson, a local fisherman.

According to Johnson, the harpoon was found inside the carcass of a huge whale which had died and washed ashore at San Clemente. The whale, according to Johnson, was nearly 250 feet in length and was of the species found in waters off the coast of Siberia.

Old time fishermen have identified the harpoon as a type used by whaling vessels off the Siberian coast. The spear, they claim, is made in Russia. It is a queer affair of iron. Four huge prongs with barbs on the end fold back against the shaft and the spear is shot from a cannon into the whale. A bomb on the end is made to explode inside the whale. A heavy rope attached to the end of the iron shaft had been broken, evidently by an effort to escape.

Estimates given by local fishermen were to the effect that the spear has been in the whale for as long as 15 years. The huge sea animal swam and floated a distance of nearly 6000 miles to reach San Clemente, it was declared by fishermen. The fact that the spear is of an ancient type caused the length of the length of time it has been in the whale while. Several of the ribs from the whale were also brought back by Johnson and are being shown by McMillan.

FINANCIAL CONDITIONS IN ORANGE SHOW IMPROVEMENT, BANK STOCKHOLDERS TOLD

ORANGE, Jan. 14.—With financial conditions showing a steady upward trend and with crop prospects appearing exceedingly rosy, the outlook for 1926 is much brighter than in the past two years, stockholders of the First National bank of Orange and the Security Savings bank were told at the annual meeting of the joint institutions here, yesterday.

In revealing findings of a recent survey, Walter Kogler, cashier of the First National, stated that general conditions in this district are gradually returning to the high peak established three years ago and that with increased crops in view all indications point to a prosperous year.

In this connection, he pointed out that deposits in the savings bank this year were considerably heavier than last year, while deposits in the commercial bank for November exceeded any single month in over a year.

Explaining that commercial deposits are lower at the present time than they were in November, Kogler declared that the survey conducted among the patrons revealed that the people are gradually paying off financial obligations and making sound investments, with the result that the general financial status is showing steady improvement.

Figures from the annual report which were presented to the stockholders showed that the combined deposits of the two affiliated banks total $1,255,057.57, with combined resources aggregating $1,590,514.92. The annual election resulted in re-election of all the 1925 officers of both institutions, as follows:

SHELL PLANS EXPENDITURES OF $118,000

LA HABRA, Jan. 14.—A deal has been closed by which the Shell Oil company purchases from John Kruse, the water well on the state highway at the northern edge of the city, formerly known as the La Habra Midway Oil company well. The price agreed upon, it is stated, is $20,000.

The Shell company, according to authoritative reports, will at once expend in the neighborhood of $118,000 in making improvements for the utilization of the water from this well in its operations in surrounding oil fields.

It is understood that the Shell company purposes to use water from the Kruse well, and from another which it plans to drill in the near future, for all its wells in the Brea canyon and Olinda fields. For this purpose, a storage tank will be constructed on the property and another in Brea canyon, pipe lines being laid to carry the water.

The Kruse well was drilled by the La Habra Midway Oil company, a local concern, which hoped to find a new oil field on the property. How blest is he whose tranquil mind
When life declines, recalls again
The years that time has cast behind,
And reaps delight from toil and pain.
So, when the transient storm is past,
The sudden gloom and driving shower,
The sweetest sunshine is the last;
The loveliest is the evening hour.

—Robert Crawford.

OFFICIAL FIGURES AS PROOF

Often we are amazed at our growth. Orange county has changed so steadily the past eight or nine years that we have not realized the distance we have traveled in that period.

The changes that have taken place in our inland cities are many and varied, and all for the best. Schools have been enlarged to meet growth in population, and while growing in that way they have also been growing in standards of excellence. Sanitary conditions have been improved by the institution of a joint sewer. Streets are in better shape than ever before, and paving programs for months ahead are projected.

Changes along the coast are even more marked than inland. From the county line at Seal Beach to the county line below San Juan Capistrano, development has worked its charms. The older cities have made themselves over. The spirit of progress and the knowledge that they have entered upon a new era of usefulness has carried them forward. Here and there all along the coast are new homes, new beaches, new subdivisions. The opening of the coast boulevard by the state is a guidepost to development.

So, reviewing the changes that we know have taken place in the communities where people live, we marvel. We marvel again and are impressed deeply thereby whenever we read figures showing the county's growth over any period. Just a few days ago, The Register carried a news article telling of the growth of the work in the county recorder's office. Miss Justine Whitney, the recorder, took from the records a statement showing that in 1915 the total receipts for the office were $16,965.95 with 16,235 documents offered for record. In 1925 the receipts were $50,081.30, and the number of documents recorded went to 35,775. The year 1925 set a new record for the office in receipts and in the number of documents handled.

One can go into other departments of the county's business and in each will find that business has increased. Official business is a criterion of development.

SMOKE OUT SMUT VENDORS

One of the worth-while subjects to which the California Congress of Parents and Teachers will direct its thoughtful attention at its session this month is that of the present prevalent plague of unclean literature. The consideration of this important subject by such an organization, representing the two agencies most vitally in contact with the growing child, should be an encouraging indication.

Between the parent and the teacher there is a current division of opinion as to the placing of responsibility for moral instruction and character building. The parent says: "The teacher is educated at state expense in the psychology of childhood, trained to impart both moral and mental instruction in the most effective form, and paid for that service. The teacher is in contact with the child the greater part of the day, the parent for only a few hours. The teacher sees the youth when it is in a receptive mood for learning; let her assume the burden for moral education."

There is some justice, of course, in this position. On the other hand, the teacher replies: "The parent exclusively is responsible for the heredity and environment of the child. The parent likewise is responsible for the influences for bad or good that surround the child from its birth until school age. The parent has only two or three children to instruct, usually, while the average teacher must take charge of from thirty to fifty. The parent has the opportunity to impart moral education through religious training, its most effective form, while the teacher is prevented by law from doing this. The teacher sees the child in the classroom for only nine, or more usually five short months, then passes him on and receives another class of subjects, while the parent may plan a constant and consistent campaign of character building to surround the child during the entire period of adolescence. The teacher has more to do than she can well accomplish in fulfilling her duties to the child's mind, the parent must take care of his character."

However such a dilemma may be resolved, it is evident that the parent and the teacher between them must accept the largest share of responsibility for the training of our growing generation in the paths of morality and citizenship; and when they attack the problem together they ought to accomplish needed reforms.

In no field is this more important than in the one which is to be discussed at the meeting this month. The phenomenal increase in the volume of salacious literature within the last few years—even months—is one of the disheartening symptoms of a general social let-down. Literally tons of slightly concealed obscenities, in word and picture, are published every month, dumped upon the news-stands, and, worst of all, sold in great part to the boys and girls of adolescent age, who seem to receive the same enjoyment in bootlegging the forbidden fruits of the printing press as their older brothers, and sisters, get from the illicit brews of unscrupulous lawbreakers.

There is a chance for the women of the Congress of Parents and Teachers to do something very definite in resisting this growing menace. There are laws at hand that may readily and effectively be invoked if public opinion is aroused to their enforcement. Both federal and state enactments are already on the statute books which may be used to clean up the news-stands, but they can not be put into execution unless there is something approaching a public demand therefor. There is a need for supplementary laws, of course, such as city ordinances, which in some cases have already been found effective. But the principal need is for such an organization as the Congress of Parents and Teachers, who admittedly are not professional reformers, blue-law advocates or long-hairs (although all of these classes are usually the necessary instruments of needed awakenings) to speak out strongly, and to plan a definite campaign of action in the interest, not only of the boys and girls, the most important consideration, but of the general public at large, whose intelligence is insulted by the growing display of crude and disgraceful publications devoted exclusively to barn-yard humor and lavatory art, that confronts all of us on the news-stands.

No wonder rural population decreases. Country doctors are becoming scarce.

Climate May Be Showing Changes

San Bernardino Sun

With Southern California enjoying what is apparently one of the so-called "old fashioned open winters" we hear the pioneers tell about, there is renewed interest in the old query, "is the climate changing?"

If winter began on Nov. 1 then there has been in San Bernardino county only one night on which the thermometer registered at the frost level. On Nov. 15 the minimum at the government station in San Bernardino was 21 degrees. In the majority of the points in the county, however, the temperature did not reach this point.

In November there were five nights during which the thermometer remained at 50 degrees or over, in December there were six such nights, and on one night in January there was a minimum of 61 degrees reported.

Winter, of course, is not over, although the middle of January has, with very few exceptions, seen the passing of the period when there is danger of a frost that would do heavy damage.

One year or even a few years prove nothing regarding climate, although there is developing over the country the belief that perhaps North America is on the fringe of a receding glacial period.

It will be remembered that several months ago The Sun demonstrated by using figures of a period of more than 30 years that the summer nights in San Bernardino are not as cool as they formerly were. That is, there have been far more nights in the last 10 years when the minimum, in summer months, remained above 60 degrees, than there were in the old days. Yet these figures did not exactly prove there was a change in climate. The figures of many weather observation stations in Southern California would be necessary for that, for the situation may be entirely local and caused by paved streets or more business buildings which hold heat close to the weather observation station, or decreased cover on the mountains, from which the ground breeze comes during the night.

The glacial periods occupied great periods of time. The fourth was at its maximum, 50,000 years ago, and as it receded and climate softened, 40,000 or 25,000 years ago, the present race is supposed to have started to develop. At least the glacial periods played the greatest part in shaping not only the geography but the human activity of the world. But a period of 30 or even 50 years of records, such as are available in San Bernardino, may not be conclusive, or even the hundred years of records such as exist in some eastern cities, can prove but little, for the climate may ebb and flow, like the tides, and conditions of a hundred years ago repeat themselves now.

Figures just compiled at Boston and New Haven, however, show that the mean temperature during the 10 years just ended is two and six-tenths degrees warmer than the mean of the 10 years ending with 1821. There are figures in other eastern states which indicate a similar rise in temperature.

Because there were four glacial periods in the past, if the stories told by the rocks are true, then it is reasonable to suppose there are others to come in the future and that the conditions in the world will undergo the same drastic changes as marked these periods of the unknown past.

It is encouraging, however, if, a glacial period requires 100,000 years to complete its work, to know that we are on the receding side rather than on the ascending side of another ice age.

To Show Up Prohibition?

Fresno Republican

"Propaganda" enough and to spare is circulating in advance of the conference on "temperance" called for February 25 at Washington by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. The information given out is that there will be a "thousand or more leaders in the movement," and that "a committee of leading American scientists and economists" is preparing a mass of data to demonstrate the failure of prohibition.

Undoubtedly the citizens of the United States will be very greatly interested in any honest and accurate information on the subject. They are weary enough now of "failures of prohibition," just as before they were weary enough of the terrible social and economic cost of the free traffic in booze.

But it will be distinctly worth while to keep our eyes sharp on the list of "scientists" and of "economists" that attend this conference. It is a fruitful function of propaganda to so prepare the minds of us in the expectation that something will happen as to quite overlook the result when it does not happen. Hitherto, the list of names that is offered of distinguished men and women who support the fight is so brief that its own supporters are ashamed of it. We shall watch interestedly to see how the "failure of prohibition" gathers up a world while gathering at Washington to demand a restoration of free liquor selling.

GUARDING THE TRAVELER'S HEALTH

Some conception of the magnitude of the work of protecting travelers may perhaps be formed if I tell you that there are approximately 3500 water supplies used by common carriers in our interstate traffic and when I tell you that about 50 per cent of the water supplies used by the railways and about 25 per cent of the water supplies used by vessels were certified as safe by the engineers employed by the United States Public Health Service during the past year.

This work is of course carried on in co-operation with the state departments of health and the facilities of these state departments are used so far as is possible in carrying out this work. The work of the health authorities has been greatly aided by representatives of the railway companies. The American Railway association, through its medical and surgical section has shown itself to be keenly alive to methods benefitting and protecting the patrons and carrying out the sanitary measures.

During the past year, in the control of water supplies used on cars, 1547 were inspected and certified through the co-operation of the state departments of health. Ninety-four samples of water from the water supplies were also certified through the co-operation of 14 river and lake city health departments. Over 3800 samples of water from water supplies used on cars were analyzed. Three hundred and sixteen inspections were made by service officers of drinking, cooking and washing water systems on 917 vessels.

These are some of the precautions which have been taken to protect the travelers against infection. It is hoped that the day is not far off when the American public can be assured that all of the drinking water provided for their comfort on our interstate vessels will have been inspected and certified as pure and safe.

In the past, typhoid fever has been the menace of seamen. Today sees the Engineers Corps of the United States Army, the Bureau of Lighthouse, the Navy Department, the Housing Corporation, the United States Shipping Board and progressive and enlightened commercial shipping organizations united in the effort to insure safe water supplies and sanitary water supply systems aboard our vessels for drinking, cooking and washing.

Leaders and Times

"What chances are there today for the young man starting out in business?" a big New York financier was asked the other day.

"Business," he replied earnestly, "is calling, crying aloud, for men. Vast enterprises can be thought of, great events can be planned, but where are the men to run them? Where are the men who can be relied upon to put the deals through, to engineer the machinery after the machine has been created?"

"There are few, very few such men. For such the rewards are high."

"But such men do exist. In our own place we have a number who have risen from the ranks, one from a messenger to partnership."

"Any intelligent person, whether in the thick of business life or observing from the sidelines, can corroborate this statement. There are bigger opportunities than ever before, because business is bigger and richer and more varied, ministering in so many more ways to so many more millions of people. There is the quest everywhere for men big enough to lead. There are scores of conspicuous leaders today who have worked up."

Where will the succeeding captains of industry, trade and finance be found? Many of them, no doubt, among young fellows now at the bottom of the ladder, inconspicuous in the crowd, seemingly handicapped beyond any hope of success. The fit will rise. Power comes to power. Special ability finds its way in an age which requires more difficult kinds of ability than any previous generation ever did.

And what of him who is merely intelligent and faithful, without genius or exceptional brilliancy? "The country offers opportunity, too, to the average man," says this financier. Assuredly it does. Unrivaled opportunity. These are the "good old pioneer times" that our great-grandchildren will rave about.

Worth While Verse

ON THE BIRTH OF A CHILD

Lo—to the battle-ground of Life,
Child, you have come, like a conquering shout,
Out of a struggle—into strife;
Out of the darkness—into doubt.

Girt with the fragile armor of Youth,
Child, you must ride into endless wars,
With the sword of protest, the buckler of truth,
And a banner of love to sweep the stars.

About you the world's despair will surge;
Into defeat you must plunge and grope—
Be to the faltering an urge;
Be to the hopeless years, a hope!

Be to the darkened world, a flame;
Be to its unconcern, a blow!
For out of its pain and tumult you came,
And into its tumult and pain you go.

—Louis Untermeyer.

The Very Idea!

By Hal Cochran

ADIOS

This tiny bit of sentiment, just now, appeals to me. It's just a farewell message to the withered Christmas tree. How short the life of wonderment. How quickly things can die. We all look up today at that which soon we pass right by.

They nursed you in your growing; then they quickly hacked you down. They packed you and they sent you to a store in any town. A kindly soul made purchase. You continued on your roam and then, dressed up in tinsel, you were used to cheer a home.

You spread the Christmas spirit and till New Year's held your place. And day by day you seemed to lose the beauty of your face. Your pointed little needles dropped and withered on the floor. In just a week you serve your time and now—you are no more.

The glowing of your yesterday is gloominess tomorrow. You go from home to alleyway without a trace of sorrow. It hardly seems you get your dues for spirit you have spread. How quickly we can all forget, when Christmas trees are dead.

Isn't it odd that whenever a woman seeks a doctor's advice and tells him she's all tired out, the first thing he does is look at her tongue.

You can't blame a husband for not bringing home the bacon if his wife never has any eggs in the house.

There was a man in any town Who told his wife some lies. Then wifey closed his optics and it opened up his eyes.

NOW, HONESTLY—Gosh, but the world gets tired of hearing you complain. Maybe something HAS gone wrong, but Have you got health—friends—a job?

Why, man, if you have all those and know how to treat 'em, you've got nothing to kick about. Lots of people think you are lucky. Well, you are—only you don't appreciate it.

And Tell You How VET AUTO DRIVER: What's become of the cranks for automobiles? MARRIED MAN: They sit in the back seat.

If the square of 12 is 144, and the capital of Tennessee is (whatever it is), what difference does it make after you're out of school?

AW, LOOK AT THE BRIGHT SIDE. WHEN YOU'RE BROKE, AT LEAST YOU CAN'T LOSE ANY MONEY OUT OF A HOLE IN YOUR POCKET, IF YOU'VE GOT ONE THAT YOU DON'T KNOW IS THERE.

Change Names

Having passed through the home-spun period of development, American cities and towns appear to be giving more attention to the names by which they are known to the rest of the world. Old names are being discarded and new names are being adopted.

In a study of the origin of names of American cities in thirty-one of the forty-eight states the civic development department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States finds that in the fifty-year period from 1921 to 1925 sixty-three changes were recorded, compared with only thirteen in the preceding five-year period.

"It is apparent," the department finds, "that interest in local names has increased materially, in the last period, particularly in the years 1924 and the first half of 1925, there having been twenty-four changes in 1924 and twenty-one in the first half of 1925."

"Among the states most active in this respect are: New York, twenty-one changes; California, eighteen; Oklahoma, thirteen; Florida, eleven."

Duplication of names of cities is a serious problem. There are thirty-one Franklins, twenty-seven Madisons, twenty-five Clevelands, twenty-four Lincolns, twenty-four Monroes, twenty-three Wilsons, thirteen Roosevelts, fifteen Adams, twelve Tafts and five Hardings.

Capitals of nations have also been a source of duplication. There are the report states, eighteen towns named Paris, eighteen Genevas, seventeen Berlins, twelve Moscows, eleven Viennas, six Pekins and two Brussels.

Most towns and cities are named after persons or place but three are named after newspapers—Argusville, N. J.; Banner, Ind. and Trilville, Kas. the last after the New York Tribune, Horace Greeley's paper.

Ricksha Passing

TOKIO.—Like the horse, the jinrikisha (man-puller-cart) is being steadily driven out by the honk-honk of the motor. Tourists no longer take the "man-puller," unless they really want to. It is the motor that takes one hither and thither.

The ricksha man of today cannot compare with his forbears of, say, when Lafcadio Hearn was in Japan. In those days the calling was a recognized one and was regarded as every whit as honorable as that of any artisan.

The younger and stronger men have opportunities of making more money by various other means than by setting in between the shafts of a ricksha, especially as the motor, the tram and the train have made tremendous incursions into what were the select preserves of the ricksha man two decades ago. The "fleet-footed boys who can outrun horses" are extremely few; those between the shafts are generally old men whom one engages more for the pleasure of talking to, as he jogs along at a snail-like pace, than for saving time.

Ricksha makers, seeing that the "man-pull-vehicle" is doomed to extinction, far from bewailing their lot and creating a disturbance, have turned to the manufacture of baby buggies.

IMMIGRANTS IN THE WEST

WESTERN STATES ARE MECCA FOR DARK SKINNED RACES FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

By ELIOT G. MEARS
Professor of Economics, Stanford University

(ARTICLE NO. 1)

THE FAR-WEST proves attractive to Canadians, Mexicans, inhabitants of the Pacific Islands, and many from Europe.

Those entering at Pacific ports and crossing the western half of both northern and southern boundaries remain in the west. Every tenth person landing at Ellis Island, New York, comes west.

Mexicans, the majority of whom are Indian or mestizo stock, cross the southern border in large and uncounted numbers and filter through all the western states as far north and east as Minnesota and Illinois and beyond.

Texas receives each year over a third of the total Mexican immigration of the United States.

The permanent cause of immigration is economic. Employment and general business conditions in western United States attract farm and industrial workers who have been accustomed to conditions less favorable in their own countries.

No limit applies to immigration generally, despite popular opinion to the contrary, and the west benefits from the influx of immigrants from the European and American continents.

Seasonal occupation and the high prices of fertile lands combine to make for the west a problem which immigrant labor helps to solve.

Dark-skinned workers from various countries find the Pacific and southwestern states meccas and are generally content to work for what we consider low wages.

These newcomers are "family people" and are not "reds." For the most part they are made up of Filipinos, Portuguese, Chinese, Japanese, Koreans and Porto Ricans. Most of these dark-skinned people are born in America's outlying possessions. These six nationalities combined with an ever-increasing Mexican immigration, will determine largely the character of our foreign-born workers of the west during the next few decades.

Legislation generally ignores the fact that humans ever seek better living conditions and treats our immigration merely as a problem of increased population.

Since an economic view of the problem by our legislators does not seem in prospect, we may see the sway of color roll higher and higher, with the west taking whatever benefits and liabilities accrue.

Smuggling of Orientals has diminished greatly, due largely to the greater profits to operators who deliver Europeans, prepaid to eastern ports. The Chinese, crafty bargainer, wanted to be delivered C. O. D. Yet thousands of uninvited foreigners cross our borders every year, establishing themselves in the cities and through the country, where they are soon swallowed up, forever safe against deportation.
